

ZIMMERMAN TELLS HOW TO MARK VOTE FOR INDEPENDENT

Not Necessary to Scratch Any Names, Secretary Tells County Clerks

Madison — (AP) — Voters need not scratch out a party candidate if they place an (X) opposite the name of an independent candidate. Secretary of State Zimmerman said Thursday in reply to a number of inquiries from county clerks.

"Any elector" he said, "wishing to vote for an independent candidate may make a cross at the top of his party column and another mark opposite the name of the independent candidate."

So doing he will vote the entire party ticket except the party candidate. It is not necessary for him to scratch out the name of the party candidate, and the inspectors are required to count his vote for the independent instead of the party candidate.

The county clerks were referred to the statutes referring to independent candidates which are as follows: "If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for this purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote, or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate."

USE RUBBISH TO BUILD NEW STREET

Highway Between W. College-ave and W. Washington-st Finished in Six Weeks

Only about 15 feet remain to be filled in for the new thoroughfare that will connect W. Washington-st with W. College-ave just east of the Wenzel Plumbing shop. Most of the rubbish and debris that has been used in filling was hauled from the buildings of the former Wisconsin Malt and Grain company, which are being torn down by the Rissman Wrecking company of Chicago.

BECHER AND SCHWARTZ FILE AS INDEPENDENTS

Carl J. Becher, aspirant for the office of clerk of circuit and municipal courts, and Undersheriff Earl G. Schwartz, each filed nomination papers on Wednesday with County Clerk John E. Hantschel signifying their intention of submitting their names to the voters at the general elections on the independent ticket. Wednesday was the last day for filing. This brings the independent column up to three names, including that of Fred A. Mueller, running for the Assembly in the Second district.

CHICKEN THIEVES BUSY IN COUNTRY

More Than 100 Chickens and Ducks Taken in One Night

More than 100 chickens and a number of ducks were stolen last week from farmers in the vicinity of Appleton. According to reports, most of the farmers were visited on the same night and several of the farmers think that the systematic robbery is the work of a gang making a business of raising chicken coops.

Henry Ashauer, town of Harrison, William Dietzen and Wenzel Zuelow, town of Buchanan, were among the heaviest losers. One farmer in the town of Grand Chute reported a loss of 30 hens and several other farmers reported losses. Ashauer lost 10 ducks, thieves obtained 35 chickens at the Zuelow farm and 15 chickens at the Dietzen farm. The three farmers named live on neighboring farms on the Darling rd. Other farms visited are in the town of Grand Chute.

DRAMATIC ORATOR WILL BE SPEAKER AT FORUM MEETING

William Bennett, Chicago, Will Discuss Machines and Millionaires

William Ramey Bennett, Chicago, noted dramatic orator, will be the principal speaker at the next chamber of commerce forum meeting Monday noon Oct. 25, at Conway hotel. Announcement of the engagement of Mr. Bennett has been made by Dr. Charles Reineck, president of Lions club, the organization sponsoring the meeting.

Machines and Millionaires probably will be the subject of his address. This lecture, one of the most popular, has been described as a "hopeful picture of producing possibilities."

He will point out that America has the most fertile soil, the greatest water power, and the richest coal beds in the world. He will show that machines are making millionaires as well as millions heir to good living; that the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer faster. His point is that all this was made possible only by machinery.

Bennett is known as the "man who can." His lectures are said to be vital, practical, and up-to-the minute, and are directed to men and women of today and the problems they are facing today in search for improvement and happiness. He appeals to grown-ups as well as young people of high schools and colleges.

POLICE RECOVER CAR STOLEN IN MILWAUKEE

Alertness of Detective Sergeant John Duval and Patrolman Joseph Bayer on Wednesday night resulted in the recovery of an automobile in Appleton which, according to police reports, was stolen in September from Milwaukee. The car, a small coupe, was located parked here on a side street. Apparently, the policeman said, it was not damaged. The person who had driven the machine into Appleton made his escape although officers were stationed near the car for many hours in the hope that the alleged thief would attempt to drive away.

PUT RED PAINT ON WATER TOWER SUPPORTS

The street department has painted the supporting legs of the city water tower with red paint so that they may be more easily distinguished after dark. The water tower stands on the Stock Fair grounds on N. Walnut-st and many motorists park their cars on these grounds every night. The black supports were not easily seen after dark and there was always a chance for an accident.

"38 YEARS OF CONFIDENCE"

COMMON SENSE IS NEEDED TO KNOW "VOTERS' RIGHTS"

State Offers Suggestions in Straightening of Ballot Difficulties

A self-apparent defect of intention and cross purpose revealed in the Wisconsin statutes regarding printing of official ballots for the general election, also touching upon the rights of candidates to withdraw from state and county contests and the rights of absentee voters has resulted in Attorney General Herman L. Ekern handing down an opinion in which the maze is clarified to the extent of his expressing the belief that common sense should prevail rather than strict adherence to conflicting statutory statements.

The principal point involved is whether or not county clerks would be able, under certain potential circumstances, to accommodate absent voters and yet have the official ballots to the various polling places within the time limit set by law. A two days variance might arise, the attorney general points out, but in the extreme that eventuality is to be contended with he clarifies the proposed procedure in an opinion carrying seven suggestions or orders.

First, candidates have the privilege to decline having their names appear on the ballot up to the close of the business day on Oct. 13; if any withdrawals are made the secretary of state will inform county clerks, by wire immediately; he will wire names of candidates to fill the vacancies up to the evening of Oct. 21.

Second, it is suggested that the county clerk have the ballots set up in type, on or before Oct. 21, with enough proof copies on hand for inspection and correction; county clerks need send out no sample ballots of the general elections as is done at the primaries; although their agents, not later than the close of the business day on Oct. 21.

Third, the county clerks, under the rulings, may order the presses started should there be no nominations received before 5 o'clock the evening of Oct. 21; if such nominations should be received it would be better to have delayed until Oct. 22.

Fourth, to print earlier under such circumstances might mean a tremendous extra cost for reprinting.

Fifth, it appears much wiser to insure correct printing than to accommodate a few absent voters.

Sixth, if county clerks should find it impossible to print and deliver the ballots within the two days involved such county clerks are absolved of blame, for (seventh) it may be safely assumed that the legislature never intended an impossibility.

Persons desiring to take advantage of the absent voting privilege must file their application, either in handwriting, by mail or in person, with County Clerk John E. Hantschel it was announced Tuesday morning.

Filing this application may be accomplished any time and the ballot will be sent out within 12 days of the coming general elections. The absentee can either vote, either in the county clerk's office or through the mail between the dates encompassed by Oct. 25 and Nov. 1.

Where written application is made for a ballot it will be mailed but no ballots will be delivered nor received by proxy at the general election, it was declared.

Recent confusion when absent voters' ballots came up for discussion during the canvass of the primary vote is believed to have clarified the situation and resulted in the mandatory proclamations regarding of such voting at the coming election.

Persons who are ill must also file applications in writing.

Swanson Lays Debt Tangle To Zeal Of Negotiators

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington—Senator Swanson is the latest solo to return from Europe with an account of the old world's lack of gratitude for the war debt settlement terms offered by this country.

Unlike Senators Harrison and Caraway, who came back as mad as hornets, the Virginia senator is hurt rather than angry.

He makes some allowances for the Europeans, particularly the French, on the ground that, with the exception

MENASHA WOMAN SEEKS HOME FOR TWIN CHILDREN

Captain Edward Shaw of the Salvation Army has received a letter from a Menasha woman asking him to aid her in securing a home for her eight months old twin children. The mother is unable to care for them and has requested Mr. Shaw to help her to put them in some Catholic home.

Four of the five little children which were left in the care of the Salvation Army about a month ago, have been adopted into homes in the city. Families in Appleton or vicinity who wish to adopt the twins or the little boy have been asked to notify Captain Shaw.

HAPPIEST HOMES WHERE HUSBAND WIPES DISHES

Atlantic City —(AP)—The happiest homes in America are manned by husbands who occasionally wipe dishes, said Mrs. Cecil G. Harvey, home service director for the Westchester Lighting company, Yonkers, N. Y., in an address Thursday before the American Gas association.

"I make this statement in refutation of the accusation that dish-wiping now and then tends to degrade or cultivate an inferiority complex in married men," she explained. "The most companionable and efficiency-equipped homes in the land have been made so by men who know home-living conditions by personal experience, and who insist that their homes be as efficiently operated as their offices."

CLINTONVILLE MAN SUES COUNTY FOR ALLEGED INJURIES

Claims Ditch in Road Resulted in Damage to Car and Injury to Self

Notice has been filed with County Clerk John E. Hantschel by a firm of Clintonville attorneys acting in behalf of a client, Erwin Thies, that damages will be sought from Outagamie-co on account of alleged injury and property loss suffered by Mr. Thies on account of dangerous highway in the county.

According to the notification, on the night of Oct. 2, Mr. Thies was driving his automobile on county trunk highway D in town of Deer Creek, near the Stephen McClone farm. The automobile lights were in good condition; the road appeared to be in good repair but, nevertheless, Mr. Thies alleges, a ditch across the road, quite wide and several feet deep, was encountered.

Unable to stop his car, the petitioner said, he ran into the opening, causing "great physical suffering" and partially wrecking his machine.

The amount of financial loss sought was not stated in the notice. Mr. Thies' complaint will be taken before the county board of supervisors at the coming fall session, the county clerk said.

Perhaps this latter story would have been all right for home consumption, the Virginian thinks, if the French could have been prevented from over-hearing it.

In these days of rapid transmission and no censorship, it couldn't be kept bottled up on this side of the water, but was promptly cabled to France and published under big headlines in all the newspapers. Swanson can't see that the French public can be much criticized for assuming that the commissioners knew what they were talking about.

After that it wasn't very easy for Berenger to get himself believed when he said the terms were most liberal to France.

The commission Swanson finds fault with consists of:

Secretaries Mellon, Kellogg and Hoover, Senator Smoot, Representatives Burton and Crisp, Richard Olney and Edward N. Hurley.

Senator Smoot, out of the whole group, has been most frequent and emphatic in declaring that, in every instance, the commission has insisted on every cent America's debtors were able to return to her.

Smoot consequently, seems likely to be the main object of the fault finders' attack when the subject comes up in Congress next winter, as it's sure to do. Swanson, Caraway and Harrison are all cooked and primed and there are some others who can be depended on to help them.

Smoot, however, is a good fighter. Senator Goff is another statesman who's going to Europe—on his way now—but it's understood he's going in the hope of benefiting his health rather than to study international relationships.

ACROSS HIGHWAY 15Council Acts to Eliminate
conne-ave Crossing

Neenah—The state railroad commission is to be asked to take action on the removal of the Soo line tracks to the south yards for switching to eliminate some of the danger of the Winneconne-ave crossing. The council at its last meeting adopted a resolution, petitioning the commission to cause the Soo line to separate its switch tracks from the Winneconne-ave crossing and has caused the commission to arrange for a meeting to be held in Neenah. Many complaints have been made by the council of the danger of switching across the main entrance to the city on highway 15 and also against the parking of engines there for hours during the night.

Neenah—A touring car owned and driven by G. M. Myan of Hebron, Ill., was struck and badly wrecked at 11:30 Wednesday night by a Soo line switch engine at the Winneconne-ave crossing. Mr. Myan was the only passenger and was not injured. He said he did not know there was a railway crossing at that point and did not see the flagman because of blinding lights of cars approaching from the opposite direction. He was on his way from Oshkosh when the accident occurred. People who saw the accident said that both the engine and car were traveling at slow rate of speed, and the engine stopped within a few feet of where the accident occurred.

INDUSTRY SCHOOL NEEDS MORE ROOM FOR NIGHT STUDY

Vocational School Not Large Enough to Handle All Evening Classes

Because of the phenomenal growth of the evening school at Appleton Vocational school and the lack of room to care for the large number of pupils enrolled, school authorities have begun to search for a place where a program of expansion can be carried on. Two places are available in the downtown district, according to Herb Heilig, director. The first is the Appleton Senior high school building and the second the Y. M. C. A.

Lack of room for academic courses is most noticeable at present. There are only four class rooms in the Vocational school fitted with desks, or arm-chairs. These rooms are in use five nights a week and therefore accommodate 20 classes. There are 24 classes which must be cared for each week and this means that four classes cannot meet until additional room is found. One class in sewing is now being held in a private home.

It is to accommodate four classes at the Y. M. C. A. building at a small weekly rental, but this will not allow for a program of expansion, according to Mr. Heilig. The question of allowing the use of the high school building for evening school purposes is being investigated by the school board.

Between 300 and 500 persons were turned away from school this year because they could not join the classes they desired. It also is impossible to add more classes as there is no place to hold them.

Four years ago, according to Mr. Heilig, the evening school was meeting twice a week. It met with such great success that in two years classes were being held four nights a week. This year classes are being held five nights a week and yet it is necessary to turn away many people who wish to attend. Classes in sewing and all kinds of shop work are the most popular although every course offered has nearly a full registration and in many instances it was necessary to limit the class only to those especially suited to that particular study.

Presentation Program Con- ducted by Daughters of American Revolution

Theodore Roosevelt's picture was hung in the auditorium of the Roosevelt junior high school Tuesday afternoon at a presentation program planned by the Appleton chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution. Two pupils, Miss Betty Meyer and John Lonsdorf, led in a flag salute which opened the program. Miss Carrie E. Morgan, assistant superintendent of schools and a member of the society presented the photograph and A. G. Oosterhouse, principal, accepted it on behalf of the school. The portrait was unveiled by Mrs. Howard Russell and Miss Joan Miller, and then J. Robison, superintendent of schools, talked to the students on the ideals of Roosevelt. A chorus of boys from the three junior high schools under direction of Dr. Earl Baler sang several negro melodies.

The Americanization committee, headed by Mrs. E. L. Bolton, had charge of the program. Other members of the committee were Mrs. John Baillet and Mrs. A. S. Galpin.

RAILROAD INCOME FROM ROYALTIES. SUBJECT TO TAXES

Opinion Is Given by Assistant Attorney General Replying to Query

Madison—(AP)—Income of railroad companies from royalties, rentals or sales of real estate not used for railroad purposes is subject to taxation, Michael J. Dunn, Jr., assistant attorney general, said here Tuesday.

The opinion was given in reply to a query from the Wisconsin Tax commission. The commission stated that a number of railway companies operating in Wisconsin own locally assessed real estate, from which income is received in the form of royalties from mining, rentals and sales.

According to the query of the commission, the railroads claim exemption for this property from income taxation on the grounds that the property was given them in grants to induce the original construction and later operation of the roads, and has been used for that purpose. The commission asked whether such income was exempt under Wisconsin statutes.

"Railway companies operating in Wisconsin," Mr. Dunn said, "are taxed on the ad valorem basis. All franchises, rights of way, roadbeds, tracks, stations, terminals, rolling stock, poles, wires, cables, devices, appliances, instruments, equipments and all other real or personal property of the company referred to, used or employed in the operation of its railroad, street railway or other property, as the case may be, and in the conduct of its business, and all title and interest in such property as owner, lessee or otherwise, shall be considered property of a railway company subject to taxation under the ad valorem system."

THE DRUNKEN DRIVER
Twenty-nine automobile drivers have been arrested and punished in Outagamie-co. this year for driving cars while they were intoxicated. The majority of these offenders were ordered to pay fines of $50 and were deprived of the right to drive cars for six months. Every effort was made to give publicity to these offenses in the hope that this publicity, with the punishment meted out by the court, would serve as a warning to others.

The fact that twenty-nine drunken drivers have been arrested in this county alone since the first of the year indicates that the punishment is not sufficient to act as a deterrent. It is apparent that appeals to sense of decency and manhood are lost on that type of humanity and that the only way to reach him is to make him fear punishment, but the punishment must be more severe than is now being meted out.

There is no more dangerous criminal abroad than the drunken driver. The fact that a drunken driver doesn't kill or maim someone every time he is on the highway is no fault of his. He is just lucky. It is difficult enough to drive with steady hands and clear eyes to avoid accident and the chance that is taken by a driver whose every faculty is stupefied by liquor is indescribable.

The drunken driver who kills someone with his car is no more criminal than the drunk who escapes that fate. The latter is merely more fortunate. If the same circumstance presented itself to him he would be a slayer also. Every drunken driver is a potential killer because of his inability to control the death-dealing machine he is attempting to pilot.

Little or no distinction is made by the law in its treatment of a burglar caught in the act of robbing a house. It doesn't consider whether he had actually stolen when he is caught. It holds, and rightly so, that the mere fact that he had broken into a home shows his intent to rob. The same thing can be said of a drunken driver. An autoist who drinks when he has responsibility for a car knows full well that he may become intoxicated and unfit to drive. If he continues to drink he is as much a criminal as the burglar who enters a house to rob. Both have criminal intentions and both should be punished for those intentions.

The burglar, if he is caught, is sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for his intent to steal property. The drunken driver, when he is caught, is slapped on the wrist for taking a cruel and unnecessary chance of killing someone. There isn't much justice there. That which the burglar takes can be replaced. The life which a drunken driver snuffs out is gone forever. Prison for the burglar, a paltry fine for the drunken driver.

More of us probably would be burglars and thieves if it were not for fear of a prison sentence. Fear of punishment is keeping many a man out of the burglary business. Perhaps it would do the same thing to the autoist who becomes intoxicated. Perhaps if he was sure that arrest for drunken driving means a term in jail, with no alternative of escaping by paying a fine he would be a little more careful about his drinking. At least it would be an interesting experiment and one that is recommended to the courts in this jurisdiction.

HIGH FLYING BANNED
Flying too high is an offense in the army, the War Department has disclosed in announcing that the verdict of dismissal by a court-martial in the case of Captain William M. Randolph of the Air Corps, was commuted to a reprimand by President Coolidge. From the evidence brought out at the court-martial it appears that Captain Randolph was flying much higher than was necessary under the existing air conditions, something that is forbidden by the army regulations. The penalty may have seemed quite harsh and does seem harsh to the civilian. To the military man, however, it was not too harsh since it would serve as an object lesson to discourage further insubordination.

And in the matter of flying too high the army is perfectly right. Each hundred feet a plane flies higher than is absolutely necessary, increases the chance of accident. Each plane that crashes costs the government money and each plane that crashes costs the army lives. Pilots are trained at a heavy cost each and thus the total loss to the army every time a plane meets with accident is great. High flying and stunt flying should be discouraged except where they are part of a prescribed course of training.

PROSPERITY AHEAD
Elbert H. Gary sees no evidence of depression ahead for the United States and Charles M. Schwab declares we are "moving toward heights of prosperity as yet undreamed of."

These men represent what frequently is called the basic manufacturing industry—steel. What automobile men think of the immediate years ahead is perhaps best expressed by the tremendous expansion programs which are building up the smaller cities around Detroit, and within the next three years are expected to add to the city of Flint alone a population as large as the present city of Jackson.

We are coming to the close of one of the most prosperous years in American industrial history. The first half of 1926 set records for production over the first half of any previous year. In automobiles, iron, steel, building materials and oil the country recorded an exceptionally large output. Heavy production, as anybody knows who studies the laws of economics, runs in cycles. There has been a slight reduction in the third quarter of the year, though we have still kept above 1925. Automobile output has fallen a little—though the difference between the high production in April and the low in July was only eighteen per cent. And employment has generally been better than a year ago.

People who are accustomed to think of prosperity predictions by big men as "just guff" for general consumption, intended solely to bolster investment faith, would not find much comfort in the record to the present date. America has held its prosperity with a pretty tight grip and continues to do so. Messrs. Gary and Schwab have a sound basis of existing confidence and production to back them up.

Just Folks
by Edgar A. Guest
MANHOOD
I sometimes sit and wonder as I see
Men sell their beauty for some petty gain,
Debauch with folly pleasures to attain,
Decease their natures conquerors to be.
If ever from our worst we shall be free?
Or are we destined ever to remain
Unthinking victims of some earlier strain
Which has no vision of nobility?
Man could be gentle, kind and brave and true,
He could be fair, whatever his race or creed,
Yet pressed by selfish interests he will do
Such things which honest men will blush to read.
I tremble, lest some careless hour of mine
Shall stamp me brutal where I could be fine.

Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

THE KNOWLEDGE OF HYGIENE
Here are three typical, representative queries—I was about to dub them foolish questions, but they are not at all foolish when one considers what passes as a "good general education" today. These questions well illustrate the deficiency of a "good general education."

Would you kindly send me any material that you have on the subject of "Health"? We are studying human biology in high school and are particularly interested in this subject. (K. A.)
One of the best in this city operated on my daughter for appendicitis when she was actually coming down with typhoid fever. I have come to the conclusion the reason there are so many Wise & Hemmers is because there are so many quacks, and people have lost confidence in the doctors and we worry along using home remedies to the best of our ability. (Mrs. N. R. H.)

What harm, if any, will it do a woman 40 years of age to take about three Feminec tablets a day for a few days at a time. She thinks they renew her "pep" and prevent trouble incident to her age. (J. B.)

The high school girl, apparently, has been led by her education thus far to imagine that the subject of "Health" may be covered in the practical or chapter in the formal course in biology. On the contrary, all this girl can hope to learn about biology in her school course is but a minor element in the study of health or hygiene.

Granting that the doctor mentioned by Mrs. N. R. H. made the mistake in diagnosis for which she condemns the profession, he may be a very good doctor nevertheless. There is nothing quite infallible in this world. If a good doctor with his special training is liable to commit such an error—and I believe no doctor can be deemed incapable of making just such a mistake—how much greater is the chance of error when the layman himself, without any knowledge or training at all, undertakes to do his own "doctoring." No, the quacks are not responsible for all the wisenhemers, the people who think they know enough about health and disease to tell the doctor a thing or two. Makers and purveyors of vicinals and soap, raiment and shelter, in this age of "sanitary" nonsense and health humbug, do their share in training novices for places in the House of Wise & Hemmers.

Along with the inquiry about the Feminec tablets came a part of the carton or box which apparently contained the tablets. According to the legend on this box each tablet contains 2½ grains of phenacetine. Phenacetine is one of the coarser derivatives so commonly incorporated in nostrums sold as remedies for headache, neuralgia, "colds," grip, and all sorts of painful or exhausted states. Like all pain killers or sense deadeners of its class phenacetine is depressing to the brain, breaks down the blood circulation, impairs the oxygen carrying function of the blood and in some cases brings about a deplorable undermining of the nervous system. For anyone to use such a drug is a dangerous thing in any circumstances. To use it in the way this woman seems to use it is deliberate cultivation of the drug habit which may lead to disaster.

All three queries should be answered by the general knowledge or hygiene or health which every intelligent person should acquire in an ordinary school course. The trouble is that our boasted popular education system never has given and does not now give future citizens a fair training in the rudiments of health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Poison Containers
Recently you referred to certain poisons which should never be kept in the house. If all the bottles containing such poisons were ribbed on the surface, so that one would immediately notice if one picked up such a bottle in the dark or by mistake, I think that would prevent many accidents. Also this would be a warning in case a label has become loosened or lost. (L. M.)
Answer.—Certain poisons which really should not be kept in the house, have been dispensed in such containers for many years—especially corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) tablets. This is a precaution for use in hospitals or physicians' offices. It was formerly a general practice to use this deadly poison as an "antiseptic." But it is not so common employed, and in any case there is no excuse for keeping such deadly poisons in the home. It is questionable whether a ribbed or roughened container would be sufficient warning to the careless or unintelligent folk who think they must have such dangerous poisons in the house.

HASKIN WRITES TODAY ON—

RITCHIE'S BID FOR PRESIDENCY
Washington, D. C. — Governor Albert C. Ritchie's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928 is found in the platform which the Democrats of Maryland have adopted for the state campaign of this year. The platform does not formally present Ritchie as a candidate for White House honors, but it is no secret that the Governor wrote or approved what he regarded as the important planks of the document and copies of it are being circulated widely in a fashion that is the equivalent of the announcement of a candidacy.

The political doctrine upon which the Democratic party in National Convention assembled will be asked to accept the Maryland leader emphasizes, as the vital needs of the United States, tolerance, personal liberty, state's rights and state responsibility, and the amendment of the Volstead Law so as to permit the manufacture and sale of beer and light wine.

Of particular interest is the pronouncement on the prohibition issue, because it states clearly and unequivocally what Governor Ritchie would do if he were running the United States and could persuade Congress to his point of view, and because he is the first of the presidential possibilities of his party to be definitely and finally committed on this question.

Governor Al Smith, of New York, is well known as a wet, but as yet no one knows precisely what he would do about the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Law. William G. McAuliffe is popularly rated a dry, but it is not on record just where he stands on the constitutional addendum to demand the law under which it is supposed to be enforced. He has declared loudly for law enforcement, but so has every other candidate for the Presidency. Declarations of that sort are to be expected and there is no more news in them than in the casual vent of a dog's having bitten a man. Should a man bite a dog, however, or should a presidential aspirant declare that he believed the prohibition law, or any other law, should not be enforced, that would be news.

OHIO CANDIDATE IS DAMP
Former Senator Atlee Pomerene, who is undertaking to stage a senatorial come-back, and who will probably be presented to the next Democratic National Convention as the favorite son of Ohio Democracy, is rated a wet, just as McAuliffe is rated a dry, and he may be just as much of a wet as the former Secretary of the Treasury is dry. But the voters of the country who want to know exactly where Pomerene stands on this issue can only gather from the data available to date that he is at least slightly damp, if not positively wet, but that he may show up with a few dry spots or freckles on his political anatomy.

Senator "Jim" Reed, of Missouri, whose presidential stock has taken a recent and decided upward turn, according to Washington wise-cracks, is popularly regarded as a wet. However, while he may feel keenly on the subject, apparently he does not think there is anything to be done about it, for with all his opportunities in the Senate he has never introduced a bill to repeal, amend, or strengthen the Volstead Law. Probably if he undertook to work out a legislative package for a present-day prohibition bill he would offer a measure to abolish the Anti-Saloon League, for he has made it indubitably clear that he does not like that organization or a hair on the head of its Washington spokesman, Wayne B. Wheeler.

There are other Democratic presidential possibilities, of course — perhaps the big figure in the 1928 picture has not even been mentioned as yet — but Ritchie, of Maryland, is the first one to take the public into his confidence to the extent of outlining his platform. In this respect, at least, he is out in front just as he was in his public discussions of prohibition and other issues, he having been the first of Democracy's candidates for the Presidency to go up and down the land making speeches that revealed his views thereon. In fact, the only man who may be said to have beaten him to a formal declaration on the prohibition issue is a Republican, Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, who some months ago came out with a statement committing himself to the Quebec plan of dealing with the liquor problem — government control and sale, with no proscription of whiskey.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE
THE BLIND DIGGER IN THE EARTH

Mole
BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n
Long before we have commenced to note the first welcome signs of spring, the little mole, very unregarding, has known all about the re-awakening of life and has started busily on his new year's work.
His home, deep down beneath our feet, consists of runways, tunnels and small chambers. In the deepest, where the spade and plow do not penetrate, he has his bedroom, with its bed of fine grass stubble and leaves, and from this and other deep runways, up and out in all directions, branch the less important passages.
Through these he wanders, eating any unfortunate meal, grub or worm, that falls into his maw. Occasionally he ventures out at night for a change of diet—but, being practically blind, does not court the glare of day.
After his "spring cleaning"—tunnel-repairing and the building of some new paths—he constructs a nest for the young. This is in one of the passages near the surface, where the warmth of the sun can penetrate, but is beneath a good thick roof of sod.
So by March or April all is ready for the family; three young are born to the western mole and four to the common eastern one. When born they are naked, blind and quite fit with a prominent Cyclops-like proboscis.
However, having, notably poor sight themselves, the parents care for them as tenderly as if they were beautiful, and within a few weeks the children are furred and out on the hunting grounds, ready to start out by themselves.
These little animals are from three to four inches in length, with fine silky coats, varying in color from silvery gray to brownish black. Their fur is much admired, but the skin of each mole is so small that hundreds may be required to make a single garment.

See-Sawing On Broadway
By Gilbert Swan
New York — Since advance reports on fads and fancies of the nation are presumed to emanate from Manhattan, let me report that I have it from forthcoming dance craze of the future my spies and secret agents that the forthcoming dance craze of the winter season is to be called "the gigolo" in honor of those convenient young men of Paris who hire themselves as dancing mates to rich old ladies.
One Mons. Dario, late of Paris, has introduced it in the New York night clubs. I am told, and since it has few of the shuddersome intricacies of the black-bottom and does not necessitate such expert foot manipulation as the Charleston, it should find some vogue.

As a matter of fact, the one-step and the fox-trot have gone unplanted, in spite of efforts of dance masters and others to launch this dance and that. A few fancy steppers pick up the trick arrangements but seldom get opportunity to dance them.
At practically all the large dances in New York at this time the Charlestoners are viewed as a variety of nuisances. Corner are roped off and announcements posted that the Charleston bounds can use that space and thus give no interference to those who wish to "dance."

So many of the speakeasies now operating in New York that a number of them have sent out agents to help drum up business.

These agents mix casually with the milling crowds about Times Square, pick up acquaintances with curb-stone loungers, and finally broach the proposition: "How'd you like to have a little drink?" New arrivals in town are picked up in hotel lobbies and the agents are paid in free drinks and commissions.

In the old days these "steers" were known as "barbies."
They were the fellows always lingering about waiting for a general set-up by some easy spender.

Perhaps never since prohibition came to America, has competition among the back-entrance resorts been quite as keen as at present. This is particularly true of the many beer places, since most folk have forgotten exactly what beer tastes like and no longer seem able to distinguish between the near variety and that which comes from a server with 5 per cent, or more, alcoholic content. Near beer passes for real beer and real beer is declared to be nowhere near, and so it goes—at 40 cents a mug and thereabouts.

With the advent of the "bar rail" rear-beer emporiums the last stand of the male seems to have joined the same.

Women got the vote. Women took to careers. Women began to smoke. Women began to cut their hair. Women began to swell the barber shop line. Women began to shoot pool.

There still remained the bar, the brass rail and the sawdust.

The rear bar has been crossed, alas! Any noon hour of the year you may see a line of bobbed-hair girls lined along the rear-beer cafes, one foot on the rail, a sandwich in one hand, a beer mug in the other. Perhaps it is as well that the saloons will never turn.

The Question Box

Q. Has the Sesquicentennial an ex-olution of foreign and domestic postage stamps? C. E. C.

A. The Post Office Department says that there is no official booth at the Philadelphia Exposition showing stamps of foreign countries. There has been some talk of establishing such a booth at the Exposition showing the stamps of the United States, but far there has been no appropriation for its establishment.

Q. Should the seasons of the year be written with capital letters, as Spring, Fall, etc.? D. G.

A. The capitalization of the names of the seasons of the year is sanctioned by some authorities. Others insist that inasmuch as the names of the seasons are common nouns they should not be written with the initial capital letter.

Federal Government or by any one or all of the other states of the Union.

The Ritchie platform also declares against the old law amendment to the Federal Constitution.

But what's it all amount to?
Men's Suits at $22.50
Men's Suits at $25.00
Men's Suits at $35.00
Men's Suits at $45.00
Men's Suits at $50.00
But what's it all mean until you have stood in front of a mirror, scrutinized the patterns, taken a hold of the cloths, explored the fit of the front, canvassed the lay of the back, examined the linings, pried into the stitching and put an official investigation into the value?

SCHOOL OPENING DIDN'T INCREASE SERIOUS ILLNESS

City Escapes Its Quota of Serious Diseases, City Physician States

In spite of the fact that with the opening of school each year practically every city experiences a great deal of contagious disease, Appleton has escaped nearly all serious diseases, according to Dr. William C. Felton, city physician. Since the opening of school there has been three cases of diphtheria, two cases of measles and seven cases of whooping cough. No other contagious diseases have been noted.

In each instance of diphtheria the disease has not been serious and one of the children was pronounced well and allowed to return to school last week. Both of the remaining cases will be released this week, according to the city doctor.

Although any contagious disease is always serious the two cases of measles and the scattering cases of whooping cough are not to be taken as alarming signs, as they are being held in check, Dr. Felton said Tuesday.

The reason for the spread of contagious disease with the opening of school was explained by Dr. Felton as being caused by "carriers." This type of child is one whose body harbors disease germs without suffering from the effects of the disease. Another child sitting nearby the "carrier" will breathe the bacteria and if his blood does not possess the qualities needed to resist the disease, he becomes ill. There is no way of determining the carriers and therefore the opening of school always brings a certain amount of contagious diseases although the percentage in Appleton this fall is much lower than usual.

If a child shows any symptoms of a serious contagious disease, his parents are advised to call in the family physician at once instead of attempting to cure the child with home remedies. Parents never know whether the youngster has a serious disease or not, it is pointed out.

"Many parents do not call a doctor because they object to being quarantined or placed in a hospital," Dr. Felton said. But they must think of the good of the community rather than of personal discomfort. It is through the system of placarding and quarantining that we are able to check serious epidemics and in order to successfully cope against disease we need the cooperation of all the parents.

GOLF COMMITTEE ANNOUNCES PLANS

Letters Are Mailed by Cham- ber of Commerce to Manu- facturers

Letters telling of the plans of the chamber of commerce for establishment of a municipal golf course in Appleton were mailed to manufacturers and other employers this week from the chamber offices.

They tell of the hope of the chamber to construct a course in South park, Fourth ward, and of the plans being carried out to raise money for the undertaking. Finally, a plea is made in helping realize the project is made.

The campaign to raise the funds is being conducted by the sub-committee on golf of the chamber of commerce of which E. H. Harwood is chairman. The committee hopes to raise a sum sufficient to cover all cost of building the course with the exception of from $3,000 to $4,000. The difference will be made up by the park board, it is expected.

After a delay of many weeks, during which time plans were being formulated, the committee is now prepared to proceed with the work. Several additional appointments have been made to the committee which originally numbered only three, and approximately $1,500 already has been promised.

It is hoped by the committee that enough money will be raised within a week or so to permit start of construction on the course this fall. If four or five holes are built during the winter the remaining holes could be completed early next spring and play on the course could begin early next summer, it is pointed out.

RESUME COMMUNITY EVENING SERVICES

Community evening services of the First Congregational church will be resumed for the winter season at 7:30 Sunday evening, with the motion picture, "Peter Pan," featuring the meeting. The usual program will be followed by a ten-minute sermon by Dr. H. E. Peabody, pastor of the church, illustrated by a motion picture.

The Gift of Joy will be the subject of the pastor's talk and the theme of the picture aptly fits his message. Peter Pan is J. M. Barrie's fascinating story, produced on the screen with Betty Bronson taking the leading part, that of Peter Pan.

A new musical plan is to be followed with organ music furnished the entire time the picture is on the screen. A special number also will be included in each service and old time hymns will be sung from words thrown on the screen. The public is invited to the service as there are seats enough for 600 persons. Children under 12 are admitted only if accompanied by an adult.

The missionary applied the salvo and saved himself from being cooked.

Wolf River Beauty Worth More Than Power-Catlin

Construction of reservoirs and dams on the Wolf river in the Menominee reservation to provide power for electric plants as proposed by power companies at a recent hearing in Milwaukee will not in any way decrease the rush of water in the spring of each year as was suggested by Allan H. Tripp in a recent letter to The Post-Crescent, Mark S. Catlin declares in a statement replying to Mr. Tripp's letter. Mr. Tripp, as president of the Association for Relief of High Water, intimated that the survey should be permitted and that perhaps utilization of Wolf river water power would be a good thing. Mr. Catlin, who is an ardent conservationist, believes the beauties of the Wolf river, with its splendid fishing, should be conserved for future generations and he is of the opinion that power dams will only increase the flood waters.

Mr. Catlin's statement follows: "There has recently appeared in several state papers an article headed, 'The Truth about the Menominee Indian Reservation Power Project.' The author of that article is very careful to tell the people that he is telling the truth about it."

"I attended the hearing at Milwaukee on September 16, in which the Wisconsin Power company was asking for a permit to make a preliminary survey on the Wolf river within the Menominee Indian Reservation, and at that time spoke against the granting of that permit. The granting of this permit by the Federal Water Power commission means that for a period of three years the applicant, whoever it may be, shall have the exclusive right to make such surveys as they see fit for the purpose of determining how much waterpower there is in a given area and what they can develop in this particular area. Now this means that the company having the permit can keep every other company out of this territory. It stifles competition and gives no adequate basis for the government or for anyone else to make an adequate survey of this territory and gives the company holding this permit a chance to acquire a waterpower at practically their own figures, and at this hearing the attorneys for this company very frankly said that this was approximately what they intended to do."

"Now the author of these articles, Mr. Allen H. Tripp of Oshkosh, Wisconsin, is interested in the prevention of high water along the lower Wolf and Fox rivers. His argument is to the point that if power dams are erected upon the Wolf river in the Indian reservation that it will have a tendency to store up the waters of the Wolf and prevent them from coming down into the flooded areas at times of high water. On the contrary, it appears to me that just the reverse of what he states will happen. It is proposed to make six dams within the Indian reservation over the first twelve miles from Keshena Falls, north along the Wolf river. Now these dams are going to be erected NOT for the purpose of storing up water but for the purpose of making a head of water so that power plants may be operated. That is the first and primary purpose of the dams and reservoirs back of them when electric light power companies are involved. They maintain their waters at the level on the crest of the dam for power purposes only, and if a succession of six dams as now proposed from Keshena north to Sullivan Falls is made, it will make also a continuous succession of reservoirs over that territory and in case of high water what will happen? If the reservoirs are maintained at the crest of the dam where the power companies must necessarily maintain them for the best electrical power purposes, then a given volume of water poured in at the north end of these reservoirs will pass through the Indian reservation over this territory at an infinitely greater speed than it would if the river was left in its natural shape where rocks and gorges and what not interfere with the flow and hold it back. If you pour a pall full of water into one side of a reservoir, it instantly has its effect upon the other side, and the argument that these reservoirs will help to stem the floods coming down the Wolf is simply absurd on the face of it, because the power companies are interested in power first, last and all the time and not in the storage of waters. "A great deal has been said about the rights of the Indians, and the Indian has been dazzled by 'heap much talk by the white man' and, in the great majority of cases when these power companies have got over feeling sorry for the Indians, that that is about all the Indians have left is sorrow spelled with a large S, and that is undoubtedly about what will happen in this case if the government is so foolish as to ever sell this power."

"Some years ago the public was fed up on the idea of building a sawmill for the Indians at Neopit, and the mill was built. About fifty per cent of the Indian lumber has been cut off today, the mill has been in operation about twelve years, and the average annual loss of this mill to the Indians has been about $50,000 per year. Isn't there a great probability of the proposed water power project turning out the same way?"

"The question involved here is not only a question as to how it will effect the Indians or how much they can get out of it, but it is territory located within the state of Wisconsin, in which it appears to me that the people of the state of Wisconsin have a greater right and a great deal more concern than the Wisconsin Power company which is one of the companies controlled by the Samuel Insull interests of Chicago and its interest, of course, is to acquire a good property to pay bigger dividends to a large number of stockholders who reside outside the boundaries of the state of Wisconsin."

"If a genuine public necessity existed for the development of this water power then there could not be much said against it. However, this is not the case. The country in which this territory is located is still wild. It is a long distance to any territory where this power could be used to any advantage, and of course, this power will be transmitted long distances within the southern part of the state of Wisconsin, where this company sells its power, and it is not reliable power for the reason that some summers the Wolf river is so low and the amount of water flow through it is small that practically a negligible amount of power can be developed. "I am wondering if the time has come when the beauty spots of this country can and will be given over to the public service corporations for desecration. The author of the article mentioned above stated with in that article that a beautiful succession of lakes would be made through the Indian reservation. Of course men's taste in beauty vary, and I am sure that when I say that I prefer the rocks, rapids, and dells of the Wolf River in their natural state as the Creator made them, to a series of artificial lakes with concrete dams holding them back, that I speak the sentiment of many thousands of people who do not care for artificiality of that particular kind with power plants attached to them."

"It seems to me that we should halt, stop, consider and ponder a long time before we permit such wonderful scenic places as the dells of the Wolf river to become reservoirs for power companies. Nature has been untold years in forming those beautiful rapids, gorges and waterfalls, and man in the space of a few short years will obliterate them for all time."

During the last few years, State Trunk Highway No. 53 has been opened up paralleling the Wolf River for twenty miles North of Keshena Falls and that territory has been a mecca for tourists of practically every state in the nation and for a large part of the tourist season of 1926 the daily visits in this territory have been in excess of five thousand people. The tourists are annually bringing into Wisconsin thousands upon thousands of dollars and if it is necessary or advisable that some income be derived out of this territory for the Menominee Indians, then it seems to me that the state of Wisconsin should be permitted to at least have an opportunity to acquire this beautiful territory for the purposes of a state park than which there would be no more beautiful in Wisconsin.

"An individual standing alone does not have much power to prevent such a thing as is now threatened upon the Menominee Indian reservation, but a conscientious spirit once thoroughly aroused would do much to stop such matters as these and I hope that those of you who may read this article will at least take time to write to your senator or congressman and protest the action which the Federal Water Power company of the United States is apparently about to take on the Menominee Indian Reservation."

Appleton Man Holds Out Hope For All Who Suffer From Rheumatism

Says Dreco made him well and he believes he will help others.

There seldom has been a remedy so thoroughly grounded in the knowledge of what the sick body needs in stomach trouble, liver and kidney complaints, rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation and similar ills, than Dreco which is now being so successfully introduced by the Dreco Expert at Schiltz Bros. Drug Store. It is the result of investigation and close study and is recommended as the greatest system invigorant and body reconstructant that has come to light. People are daily testifying to its merits. Mr. Richard Werner, 427 So. River St. this city, an employee of the Fox River Mills, says:

"When I started on Dreco I had rheumatism so bad I cried out in pain. My joints were sore and painful and so stiff that at times they seemed to creak like the rusty hinge of an old barn door. My liver was also very bad and I've taken as high as three cathartics in a day without moving my bowels. I suffered with a foul breath, a bad taste in my mouth, severe headaches and so many other smaller ailments I can hardly name them all. "Dreco came to Appleton just in time to prevent me from giving up hope altogether for nothing I took had helped me. This grand remedy, however, went right to the root of my troubles and drove out all the rheumatic pains enabling me to walk better and get around like I used to. Dreco also regulated my bowels, sweetened my breath, overcame the severe headaches and bad taste in my mouth and made me eat, sleep and feel like a different person. I feel so happy over the many benefits it has brought me I feel like shouting its praises from the housetops."

Mr. Marr Baker, the well-known expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schiltz Bros. Downtown Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results.

MORE BEACH FREEDOM

St. Jean De Luz, France—(AP)—The Lido has new rivals in St. Jean De
Luz. Hendaye and several smaller resorts on the Basque coast between Biarritz in France and San Sebastian, Spain.

For several seasons the Venetian resort stood alone as the most informal bathing place in Europe. Hotel guests lounged about all day in their bathing costumes and walked into the sea whenever the spirit moved them.
Much the same condition now prevails in the smaller resorts of the Basque coast, which are frequented by Spanish and South American visitors and are attracting more and more
Englishmen and Americans each year.
San Sebastian and Biarritz are both so formal that bathers are required to use bathhouses and are not permitted to pass through the streets in bathrobes.

SOUSA CUTS HIS TOUR SHORT SO HE CAN SHOOT DUCKS

Veteran Bandmaster Will End His 1926 Jaunt Next Month at Baltimore

John Philip Sousa and his band will play his famous marches, suites, and jazz selections at the Lawrence Memorial chapel at 8:20 Thursday evening. Many Appleton people heard and enjoyed the great bandmaster and his 100 handsmen two years ago, and these as well as others will hear and enjoy them again.

The soloists playing with the organization this season are especially fine, it would appear from the reception given to them in other cities. Miss Marjory Moody, soprano, has charmed audiences with her singing of "The Beautiful Blue Danube," by Strauss. John Dolan, cornetist, and Howard Goulden, xylophonist, are both able performers. The well-known Liebesfreund by Kreisler will be played by Mr. Goulden.

Sousa's thirty-fourth annual tour will not be as long as that of last year. One year in two the conductor reserves a holiday in duck hunting time. The tour this year will be of only 20 weeks and will end in Baltimore at the close of November.

Last year a greater number of persons, 2,032,409, paid admission to Sousa's concert than in any previous season in his entire career. He has been constantly before the American people for a third of a century, and is always welcome.

Last year he varied his usual route with a trip into western Canada. This season, in addition to his American engagements, Sousa will make a brief tour to the maritime provinces of Canada.

The program to be given in Appleton will be distinguished by the unusual number of novelties, not the least of which will be his own arrangements of popular jazz tunes.

Other officers of the first year class are: Carleton Stark, vice president; Miss Gladys Dix, secretary; Clarence Eggert, treasurer; Miss Ruth Cohen, Miss Ruth Russell and Robert Neller, representatives to the student council; and John Schlegel, cheer leader, with Walter Moore, alternate. Representatives to the student council from the junior class were elected last spring.

COURT HEARS 16 PLEAS FOR MOTHERS' PENSIONS

Judge Fred V. Heinemann disposed of 16 widows' aid matters in county court Wednesday. Twelve renewals of county aid were granted; one mother's pension was discontinued as the child being supported has passed the age limit; two were held open for further investigation and one was disallowed when it was proved that the woman had once been a recipient of county aid, had married, lost her second husband and was making application for aid toward the support of her child as under her former circumstances. It was brought out that the child, a boy, is nearing the age limit of 14 years and also that the widow received $1,000 from the estate of her second husband.

LUBITSCH'S GENIUS ACHIEVES MIRACLE OF CINEMATIC ART
Lubitsch's "So This Is Paris," the Warner feature film at the Elite Theatre today and Friday only, contains one of the most marvelous achievements of modern photography. The sequence is that of the swirling, glittering, joy-mad hosts of Charleston dancers at the New York Mid-Night Revels in Paris. The way in which the camera had caught the pulsing, dissolving pandemonium of the scene is a miracle of Lubitsch's genius. It is like an animated futuristic painting.

The kaleidoscopic sequence closes a blazingly illuminated cafe, where hundreds are "titting the high spots" in that craziest dance of the dance-erased age, the Charleston. It glows, it fades. The grinning wide-mouthed face of the negro jazzbo appears. Now are seen misty, tipsily-lifted glasses; faint swift-swept fiddle bow; laughing or leering faces; twinkling toes; rattling drums; all intermingling, veiled, tantalizing, exhilarating. It is startling; breathtaking; it throws audiences into paroxysms of spontaneous applause.

This, however, is but one of the many unusual and delightful features of "So This Is Paris." The picture is a clever adaptation of "Revelion" that merriest and spiciest of all French farces. Further-more it was directed by Earnest Lubitsch, which fact alone, places any film among the masterpieces. Monte Blue and Patsy Ruth Miller appear at their best which is very good, and parts of prominence are interpreted by Lilyan Tashman and Andre Beranger.

The picture is sophisticated, swift-moving, mirthful in the extreme, and gloriously human. "So This Is Paris" is too good too miss. It is almost too good to be true. You'll agree, after seeing it.

THRILLS AND ROMANCE

In the thrilling story of love, loyalty and danger, Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous dog star of the screen, comes to the New Bijou today for three days. Rinty's latest picture for Warner Bros., "A Hero of the Big Snows," written by Lwart Adamson, was directed by Herman Raymaker, who also directed this canine wonder in "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "Crime Night Cry."

The story concerns a young wastrel, Don Alvarado, who befriends the dog from the brutal treatment of a cruel trapper, played by Leo Willis. When the dog responds to his kindness and affection, Ed decides to make his quarters more comfortable and attractive and gradually wins the interest of lovely Mary Mallory (Alice Calhoun).

Rinty is suspected of hurting Mary's young sister, Mary June Milliken and Ed broken-heartedly agrees to shoot him. But when the sick child, who had really been attacked by a wolf, has to be rushed through a blinding snow storm to the doctor, it is Rinty who bravely helps ward off the wolf pack and brings Ed a message of the girl's danger. He has saved the child and the young lovers treasure him as their bravest and most loyal friend.

There are said to be some of the most beautiful scenes of the snow country in this production, as well as one of the most thrilling fights ever screened. This fight is between Rinty and the wolf pack, a hair-raising and wildly exciting spectacle.

A Double Treatment for Colds

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist the direct, double action of Vicks VapoRub. When it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime; Vicks acts in two ways at once:

- (1) Direct to the inflamed air passages with its medicated vapors, released by the body heat; and
- (2) Direct through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness, soreness and pain.

Head or chest colds may easily sap your vitality and undermine your health. Don't neglect them.

ORANGE, BLUES CONTINUE HARD WORK FOR SATURDAY

Catlinmen Spend Entire Practice Session With Punting, Charging Drill

Shields Hopes in Long Scrimmage; Kunitz - Getshow Combination Goes Good

Preparing for hard Saturday games with Coe college and Oshkosh high school, the two Appleton grid squads worked well into the twilight Wednesday afternoon. Coach Joseph Shields worked his Orange clad boys hard, ending with a long scrimmage against Oshkosh tactics as used by the second squad. Lawrence's hopes for a Midwest conference win at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, spent most of the afternoon on the fundamentals in which they have shown a weakness so far this season. The Blues had only Thursday afternoon left to practice before the Coe games as the distance to the Iowa city forces them to entrain Friday. The squad was divided into backfield men and linemen Wednesday. The linemen, working under Coach Sylvester, spent most of the afternoon charging. Two lines were in place and as the center of one snapped the ball to Dutch, they charged, one attempting to make large holes for the backs and the other to get through and to the ball.

Of the remainder of the crew Hilton, Reese, Nason and Heideman engaged in a prolonged punting duel with Bloomer and several other backs catching the kicks. Hilton had the edge in this department, though the Blue mentors drilled all the men hard to correct one of the squad's biggest weaknesses. Hilton probably will be used for all punting against Coe.

After the drills two squads were assembled and these together with Bill Ashie's freshmen ran through signals until after dark.

Over at old Lawrence field, the Orange scrimmaged until long after the ball carrier could not be distinguished. Late in the workout the boys were tackling anyone who appeared to be carrying a ball.

The feature of the practice was work of Kunitz and Getshow, the new guard-line combination. Getshow is a veteran from last year, but Kunitz played fullback this season, his first. After the Fondy game he was shifted to guard to strengthen the weak center of the line. He is a husky lad and a hard fighter. The new pair, working together for the first time, open holes large enough to drive haywagons through in their side of the opposing line.

Other features of the work of two sub backs, Roemer and Gelbke. The latter, who worked a lot as a regular last year, has had little chance this season. His work this week behind the first team line, warrants him a chance, however, and he will get plenty of opportunity to show his stuff Saturday against Oshkosh.

Ed is a speed artist with plenty of fight. Roemer, second team quarterback, was the sparkplug of his team Wednesday, making a few good gains against the firsts. On one occasion he intercepted a varsity pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown, outspitting several opposing men.

SHUFFLES CALLAHAN SHUFFLES TOO OFTEN

Chicago—Shuffle Callahan, Chicago's track-driving pugilist, is shuffling back to his job some months after he was shifted away for some time ago. It seems to be a case of too many shuffles for Shuffle.

After tuning his pile-driving fists on a bunch of lesser lights, Shuffle decided to step into real society by meeting Tommy Freeman, crack Cleveland welterweight. The two men met last Wednesday, making a few good gains against the firsts. On one occasion he intercepted a varsity pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown, outspitting several opposing men.

The other night Shuffle sought pretty good game again, meeting the dethroned Mickey Walker. When the Mick got busy there was nothing to it. However, Shuffle had enough in less than five rounds. Shuffle found the big cards were shuffled against him. Now he'll probably shuffle back to his track-driving pastime.

Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, Ohio, defeated Pancho Denelo, Philippines (10).

Mushy Callahan Will Try To Hold Three Big Crowns

BY DAN THOMAS

Los Angeles—Three world's pugilists, champions all molded into one human body—a condition without a precedent in ring circles. And yet it is entirely possible in the case of Mushy Callahan, new world's junior welterweight champion.

The former Los Angeles newsboy had little difficulty in lifting the crown from Pinky Mitchell in their recent bout at the Vernon arena here. In November he will meet Pete Latzo for the welterweight title at Madison Square Garden, New York. And his manager, Eddie Sears, is angling for a titular bout with Sammy Mandell. Callahan can easily make 135 pounds for Mandell if the Rockford "fish" will meet him.

Mushy might drop the verdict to either or both of these opponents. But he is a logical contender, and after what took place at Philadelphia on Sept. 23, I am convinced that anything can happen in the squared circle.

Bob Fitzsimmons because a double titleholder in 1917 by stopping James J. Corbett in 14 rounds at Carson City, Nev. He soon relinquished his middleweight crown—although he could still make the weight—because there was a better field in the heavyweights.

Others have held two titles, but never has pugilism seen a triple champion.

In fact, it was practically impossible for a pug to hold a championship in three divisions before the introduction of the "junior" classes. Callahan showed a lot of class in defeating Mitchell. He was the same old Mushy who copped a verdict over Ace Hudkins here last fall. He was the aggressor throughout most of the battle, and twice had Mitchell on the canvas, although the champion didn't take the count.

Mushy should be a big card in the east, due to his victory over Hudkins, who is a favorite along the Atlantic seaboard. He and Mandell should pack any arena in Chicago clear to the rafters, and they would draw a good-sized crowd into Madison Square Garden.

"I would like nothing better than a match like Mandell after I finish Latzo," Callahan told me just before leaving for Chicago, where he will meet Spig Myers and Muzzes LeRoy. "Of course it would take me two or three months after Latzo goes to get down to 135 pounds without sappling my strength, but I can do it."

"Pete Latzo is going to give me a tough scrap, and I might lose several pounds while I'm in the ring with him. My friends here seem to think that Latzo will be easy for me. Naturally I expect to win, or I wouldn't have accepted the match, but it won't be any setup."

KEWAUNEE FOLKS TURN OUT TO SEE KUICK IN ACTION

Former High School and Beloit Star in Milwaukee Lineup Against Bays

Green Bay—Kewaunee, Casco and vicinity will be represented by a young army of football fans at the Packers-Milwaukee state championship pro football game here on Sunday afternoon at the City stadium.

Every Sunday a flock of gridiron enthusiasts from the "K-C" sector invade the Bay to see the Packers perform.

When the Bay Packers and Milwaukee Badgers clash at Green Bay Sunday, two former teammates for two years will hold a reunion. They are Long John McAniff, all Midwest quarterback at Beloit for two years, and Stan Kuick, all-Midwest guard from the same school. McAniff and Kuick are old pals. Mac is with the Packers and Stan with the Badgers. Pildy Purdy of the Bays also played with Kuick last year on Beloit's greatest eleven.

form but the crowd this Sunday is going to be twice as big and then some. And the reason is Stan Kuick. A few years back, Kuick was the mainstay of the Kewaunee High eleven and, in those days, the Bohemians held their own with the teams around this section mainly due to Kuick's super ability as a griddle. The brilliant play of the Kewaunee husky attracted the attention of Tommy Mills at Beloit and he was invited to attend the institution in Fairland.

It didn't take Kuick very long to make the varsity grade at Beloit and he was a first stringer for three years. Last fall he went so good that Walter Eckersall named Kuick on one of his all-Western elevens at a guard position. The day after Kuick got his sheepskin at Beloit, Red Bryan, manager of the Milwaukee club, arrived on the scene and signed him to a Badger contract.

The former Kewaunee star has been playing bang up ball for the Badgers and last Sunday, he was one of the stars in the Racine game. Naturally, his home town folks are mighty proud of the big fellow and they are all coming out Sunday to see him perform against the Packers.

The 25 piece Kewaunee band is going to make the trip here and the Kewaunee high school eleven will also be on the job as guests of the Green Bay Football corporation. A block of 250 tickets have been sent to Kewaunee and, according to W. H. Marquard, who is in charge of the "Kuick Day" turnout, the ducks are moving briskly.

A "GARRISON" FINISH?

RICHARD GARRISON

One of the most promising gridironers on the Indiana University squad this fall is Richard Garrison. Garrison is a quarterback, a brainy pilot and a fast, clever runner. Hoosier rooters are looking to the youngster to come through in sensational style for "Pat" Page's aggregation. Garrison comes from Indianapolis, where many Big Ten stars have got their starts.

Triple Pass With Double Reverse Is Classy Trick

BY ERNIE NEVERS

I doubt if any football coach has a greater bag of tricks than Coach Glenn Warner of Stanford. Whatever little success I have had on the gridiron was due to the teachings of Stanford. I am inclined to think that his teams are hard to scout. In no two games last season did we use exactly the same system.

In the old days when Warner had charge of the Carlisle Indians, I understand he kept rival coaches busy trying to ferret out his tricks.

I have heard him relate how one of his players once ran for a touchdown from kickoff against Harvard by scorching the ball under his jersey.

I also have heard him tell how in one of the big games all his players had a duplicate of a football sewed on their jerseys, and as the ball was passed each player would make it seem that he was carrying the ball.

I am told it practically was impossible for the opposing team to distinguish between the player actually with the ball and the 10 others with fake footballs.

The stunt of having one of the Carlisle Indians rolled up in a blanket on the sidelines to spring to his feet and remove the blanket as play was started, thereby upsetting the opposition, was another favorite trick.

The rules committee has since so worded the rules that it is now hard to beat them by trickery.

In recent years I know of no trick play used by Stanford that afforded Coach Warner greater satisfaction than the triple pass with the double reverse.

The first time Warner sprung it against California, the greatest rival of Stanford, a touchdown resulted. That was a great break for the Warner strategy.

As fullback at Stanford I handled most of the passes. In this play the ball came direct from the center to me at fullback.

I would make a bluff to go around the opposition's right end. At the same time the right halfback would start running toward me and I would pass the ball to him.

The right halfback then gives the ball to the left halfback, who proceeds to run around the right end.

While the play is not new, yet it requires extreme accuracy on the part of every player for it to go over.

Coach Warner always insisted that every Stanford player be in action during the play, making it seem as if he were carrying the ball regardless of what he was actually doing, in order to increase the deception of the maneuver.

BURNS OF INDIANS MOST VALUABLE OF A. L. BALL PLAYERS

Veteran of 13 Seasons Almost Unanimous Choice of Baseball Writers

Chicago—(AP)—George H. Burns, first baseman on the Cleveland baseball team of the American league, was designated Wednesday as the most valuable player in his league in the season of 1926.

A veteran of thirteen years of service in major league baseball, Burns was practically the unanimous choice of the committee of eight baseball writers who made the award. He obtained 63 points in the balloting out of a possible 64 for inclusion on the American league honor roll, where stand already the names of Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Sisler, Ruth, Johnson and Peckinpaugh.

Second, but with scarcely half as many votes as Burns, the award committee placed Johnny Mostil, centerfield of the Chicago White Sox, with 33 votes, while one vote behind him ranked Herb Pennock, pitcher for the New York Yankees.

Burns capped his brilliant 1926 performance for the Indians with a major league record for two base hits, knocking out sixty-four two ply hits to break the mark formerly held by Tris Speaker, his team's manager. He batted .388 in 151 games, and had three triples and four home runs among 216 hits, for a total of 238 bases. He batted in 114 runs, ranking second to Ruth in this class; took part in 122 double plays, and had 1,499 putouts, 99 assists, and 15 errors. He scored ninety-seven runs himself.

The Cleveland first sacker broke into the American league with Detroit in 1913, served two years with Philadelphia, and went to Cleveland, which sent him to Boston, but got him back in 1924. For six years he has batted well over .300, his best mark being .361 in 1921.

cancel the remainder of the schedule in midseason rather than go deep in the hole.

The team will be composed of several Neenah and Menasha stars as well as some of the best imported players in the country. The first practice was held Wednesday night at the Armory. "Sloum" Madson, former Neenah high and Booster star, will play one forward. He starred for the crack Fond du Lac pro team for the last two years. At center will be "Dutch" Wall, Weyauwega sharpshooter, another old Neenah player. Ole Jorgenson, Neenah high coach, who starred at LaCrosse Normal and later with the Appleton pro team is ready to go.

Edie Kotal, former Lawrence star, who later played with pro teams in Appleton, Fond du Lac and Green Bay, will be sought by the management. Ehrhart, high school star of the last three years, also will be out for the team.

Neenah did not have a team last year and those organizing the team are confident that Twin City fans will take to basketball again.

The first game will be staged on Thanksgiving night at S. A. Cook armory. Negotiations are being made to schedule Doc Delmore's Two Rivers gang.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

The name Johnson is playing a prominent part in valley conference grid circles this year. Three outstanding grid stars have this name, while one director of athletics and a coach also bear the handle and another mentor Johnston is a good halfback, while at Fondy, a Johnson stars in the rear wall. East Green Bay has a stellar lineman by that name. Marinette also had a Johnson in the line last year. At Marinette we find Coach Tom Johnson and at Manitowoc we have a director of athletics named Johnson and a grid coach named Johns.

Extra! Extra! The ante is raised again. Every time Manitowoc speaks of the Appleton game, the Ship writer adds a touchdown to the amount his team should have won by. A few days ago he said the Ships should have won by a marker while the latest is "Manitowoc still maintains its football team is two touchdowns better than Appleton will be at its best all season."

All three Wisconsin members of the Midwest conference see action Saturday with the out-of-state colleges favorites in each tilt. Ripon and Beloit already have lost in the Midwest race. Cornell, which wallpopped Beloit, 17-0, is a strong favorite over Ripon. Monmouth, which lost to Coe, the Blues next foe, 7-3, is a slight favorite over Ripon. Coe is a slight favorite over Lawrence, the only Badger state team still undefeated in the Midwest race.

Wisconsin's Badgers start off a hard schedule with a tough opener Saturday, but Cardinal fans are banking on George Little, to pull them through. Purdue has a great squad this year, with Wilcox the big star. They gave the Navy boys all they could handle though losing 17-14. If the Badgers can stop Wilcox's triple-threat they will have gone a long way toward beating the Boilermakers.

On the other hand Purdue will have to stop one of the best quartets of backs, though not so flashy, on the Big Ten grid, with four other good men in reserve. The first quartet in Doyle Harmon, Toad Crofoot, Rollie Barnum and either Bob Krutz or Joe Kreske, should be one of the most feared in the conference in ashort time. Four of the men are vets of 1925, while Kreske is going so good he has replaced the plunging Kreuz temporarily. Beside these men, don't forget the lightweight, Shaw, one of the best sidesteppers in the conference, Mansfield, Gene Rose and others.

NEENAH-MENASHA TO HAVE PRO GAGE TEAM

Madson, Jorgenson, Wall, Many Others to Play at Twin Cities

Plans for one of the best professional basketball teams in this part of Wisconsin to put Neenah-Menasha on the state cage map, have been started by Twin City enthusiasts. A few years ago Twin City cage squad held its own and often beat the best in the state and out including such teams as the Beloit Fairies, Milwaukee Bright Spots, New York Nationals, Minneapolis Marines, others of like calibre. However, one year the sport took a decided slump in the cities, only small crowds turning out to see stellar attractions which brought many star teams to S. A. armory. The high demands of star outside teams aided by the small attendance forced the management to

TWO GRIDDERS IN FIGHT FOR RED'S FAME ON SATURDAY

Frosty Peters - Nick Kutsch Clash to Feature Iowa-Illinois Battle

Chicago—(AP)—The foot steps of the "Galloping Ghost" of 1925 football echoed Thursday in the hull before Saturday's opening encounters in the battle for the Western Conference title.

Bob Zupke's stadium at Illinois where Iowa meets the Illini before a homecoming crowd was the mecca for a midwest looking for another Grange.

Two figures stood out against the background against the Iowa-Illinois warfare and its promise of a duel between the two most touted to the glory, that was Red's. They were "Cowboy" Kutsch, Iowa back and "Frosty" Peters, Zupke's own bid for the place left vacant when his famous protegee traded his 77 jersey for a diploma.

Peters, playing his first year of intercollegiate football has led the Illini offense and dropkicked his way into favoritism. He is a shifty, pace-changing broken field runner. Kutsch is a rushing charger, probably at his best when threatening a broken scrimmage line. He played football last fall that brought mention as a Grange rival then.

The game at Urbana rates a major place among the big ten contests involving all but two of the universities in titular conflict. Chicago, entraining Thursday for Philadelphia with a somewhat battered squad meets Penn for the sixth time since 1903 and Ohio state, in fine trim and seeking to repeat last year's performance, engages Columbia at New York city. Barred stadium gates were in general favor throughout the Big Ten confines Thursday as coaches tapered off a week's strenuous work for the quartet of games which oppose Purdue and Wisconsin at Madison, Minnesota and Michigan at Ann Arbor and Indiana and Northwestern at Evanston. Knute Rockne added final touches to the offense his team will use against Penn State at South Bend in game of conference interest although Notre Dame is not a Big Ten school.

EXCHANGE OF PICTURE STARS HELP PRODUCERS

New York, (AP)—Large motion picture companies are interchanging players, thus indicating a measure of cooperative efforts to obtain the best casts for individual pictures.

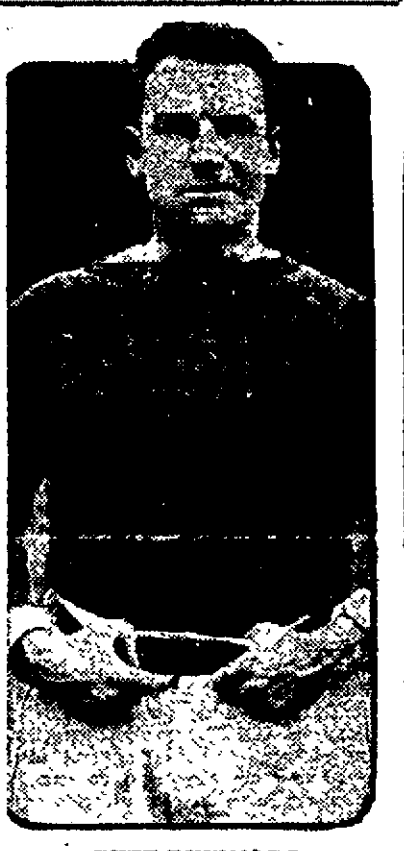

Within a short time, for instance, Paramount has "borrowed" Ronald Colman Jack Muhlhall, Aileen Pringle and Renee Adoree. To offset this "borrowing," the company loaned Mary Brian, Lya de Putli, Charles Rogers Noah Beery, Jack Luden and Betty Bronson to others.

Picture companies, casting a film, will discover that the player best suited to play a certain role is at present working. Rather than fill the role with another player not quite fitted to the part, they go to another company and "borrow" a player. The courtesy is returned when the situation is reversed.

Sometimes this borrowing and loaning has an additional advantage. A player under contract at a high figure might not be working. Lending him at such a time saves the company considerable money.

PETE REYNOLDS

Meet Pete Reynolds, famous football coach at Syracuse University. Pete hopes to turn out a better Orange eleven this fall than that which represented the institution a year ago. He has a big task confronting him, too, for the 1925 aggregation was one of the best in collegiate circles. Reynolds, by the way, won his spurs as a football warrior at Syracuse several years ago.

RACINE BROTHERS OPPOSE EACH OTHER IN SERVICE BATTLE

Charley Born Is Army End and Brother Arthur Is Guard for Sailors

New York, (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Born of the Racine, Wis. Borns, will be absolutely impartial when their sons go battle for the Army and Navy elevens in Chicago, Nov. 27.

Charley Born is an Army end, and Arthur Born is a Middle guard. Their meeting will mark the first time in service gridiron history that brothers have appeared in opposing lineups. The parents will attend the game. They have promised impartial cheering.

Charley has been a regular on the cadet team for two years, but the family conflict has just become point-blank through Arthur's recent rise to first team regularity with the sailors. A family tie binds the coaches of two elevens which meet next Saturday. When Wesleyan engages Rochester at Rochester, Dr. Edgar Fauver, Wesleyan coach, will pit his strategy against his twin brother, Edwin Fauver of Rochester. They graduated in the same class at Oberlin college and played such similar end positions on the football team that even team mates could not tell them apart.

OSHKOSH GRIDMEN ARE DETERMINED TO WHIP APPLETON

Victory Last Year After 2 Seasons of Losses Makes Blue Hopeful

Oshkosh—Determined to get into the win column, the Oshkosh high school grid team got down to hard work this week in preparation for their game with Appleton at the Paper city, Saturday.

The Papermakers are not taking the local team lightly, even though Oshkosh has been defeated by large scores in their two conference wars. Oshkosh defeated Appleton a year ago, after having gone through two years without a win.

The score was a shutout, 14 to 0, for the locals. Valley sport writers are already picking two or three Oshkosh players, for the all-conference team, merely on the fight they are displaying in losing battles. The fight of the local boys does not become apparent until the game is lost, however, and by that time the damage is done.

With that win of last year, favoring the local gridders Saturday, they will have a little more confidence in themselves and will try hard to make it two straight. The locals have been making a most favorable showing in practice sessions, but when the game starts generalship seems to be lacking.

The exact lineup of the highs has not been determined until after this week's practice. Anyone who can show he has the necessary spirit and ability will be given a chance. With two defeats behind them, the highs are getting down to business and with a determination to win over Appleton for the second time, in the game Saturday.

MARQUETTE MEETS ST. LOUIS SQUAD

Golden Avalanche Will Attempt to Break Game Tie Between Two Schools.

Milwaukee—Coach Frank J. Murray's Marquette university Golden Avalanche invades St. Louis, Mo., to play St. Louis university on Saturday with the avowed intention of defeating the Billikins and, in so doing, breaking a tie of long standing between the two schools.

This will be the first gridiron meeting between Marquette and St. Louis since 1920, when the locals went to St. Louis and won, 49 to 14. The series between the two schools has been sporadic, the first game having been played back in 1906. In all, St. Louis and Marquette have met on the gridiron eight times and the series now stands with each team having won three games, while the other two were scoreless ties. Marquette is far in the lead in total points.

Here's what the records show:
1906—Marquette 0, St. Louis 30
1912—Marquette 6, St. Louis 20
1913—Marquette 24, St. Louis 0
1914—Marquette 7, St. Louis 14
1916—Marquette 56, St. Louis 0

BADGER PROS HAVE GREAT WING PAIR

Neacy, Dilweg, Both Six-footers, Classed as Best in Pro League

Milwaukee—The Badgers will invade Green Bay Sunday with two of the greatest ends in the National Professional wheel—men who played up to the famous Brick Muller, of Los Angeles.

And, moreover, they are two of the tallest ends in the business. Dilweg, of Marquette, in two games in which he has clashed with Muller, has been rated by critics as good a man, if not better, than the Californian.

In the East-West game on the coast last New York's Dilweg came out with all the honors. In the Marquette Buckeye game a week ago Dilweg and Muller were the stars of the contest, with Dilweg showing to advantage, except in the one instance when Muller got away for a touchdown. Repeatedly Dilweg brought down forward passes against a three-man guard and was responsible for many yards while the coast team, outside of a couple of passes, made their distance only once in the contest.

Teaming with Dilweg is Clem Neacy of Colgate—classing only a slight degree under his teammate and the famous Brick. Neacy plays a wonderful defensive game and is always dangerous on receiving passes.

Dilweg is 6 feet, 2 inches tall; Neacy is one inch higher. Both were basketball stars. Both are fast in getting down under punts. And both are sure, hard tacklers.

There is considerable height, to the Milwaukee line. Ashmore of Gonzaga, tackle, is a six footer; Gay, is a six footer, and Oxle Lane, the old Marquette captain, is six feet, four inches tall. Donigan, of Minnesota and Kuick of Beloit hit at about five feet, ten inches. Burks, is in a class with Donigan and Kuick. He is light for a center, but more than make up for his weight disadvantages in high fighting aggressiveness. In the game against the Chicago Bears, Burke with one arm practically in a sling held the giant Traffolt even.

RAINS TAKE TOLL FROM STATE CROPS

Wet Ground Makes Harvesting Extremely Difficult, Report Says

Madison—(AP)—Excessive rains and lack of bright days have taken a toll from Wisconsin crops in addition to making harvesting work extremely difficult, it was announced Wednesday by the Crop Reporting service, of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture, at Madison in the October survey. The potato estimate of the United States, the report states, remains at 351 million bushels practically the same as a month ago.

"The condition of the potato crop in different Wisconsin counties," the report said, "is quite uniform this year. All sections of the state are digging fair to good yields. Although the wet soil and weather have been very unfavorable for harvesting, there has been practically no wet rot. The frost checked what might have developed into a heavy infection of late blight."

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child

One Boy Gained 11 Pounds in 7 Weeks and Is Now Strong and Healthy

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, Cod Liver Oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and now is healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Schlitz Bros. and all druggists—but be sure and insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine.
Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help—wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them. adv

HOW TO REDUCE VARICOSE VEINS

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches. If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moore's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic cases of Piles are often entirely absorbed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. Volst's Drug Store sells lots of it. adv.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE CHERRY LANE, 18, one of a family of four children of MR. and MRS. LANE, typical American working people, has a long list of admirers, which includes: CHESTER FAITH, her former "steady" FAITH, her stay-at-home sister.

CHRIS WILEY, to whom Mr. Lane has forbidden the house, and whom Cherry meets clandestinely.

ALBERT ETTLESON, a traveling salesman, and BOB HATHAWAY, to whom Faith is engaged, but who has eyes only for the petite, copper-haired Cherry.

Faith's life is largely made up of household drudgery and of getting Cherry and their brother, JUNIOR, 21, out of trouble.

CHESTER HART, calling on Cherry, has invited GEORGE PRUITT, son of one of the richest families in town, to call on Faith, since he himself feels rather mean at his own treatment of Faith.

Pruitt, who has studied art in New York, tells Faith that she is a modern Venus, and sends her a great box of American Beauty roses the next day.

Cherry is angry and jealous and determines to win Pruitt for herself. While AUNT HATTIE LANE is helping Faith to make a new dress, a gift from aunt Hattie, the girl gets a telephone call from the Western Union. The message is for Cherry, from Albert ETTLESON, and Faith hurries to the business district to the offices where Cherry works, to give her the message and to warn her not to play with ETTLESON, who is a married man.

She surprises old MR. CLUNY, Cherry's employer, with his arm around Cherry's shoulders, and all thought of the ETTLESON telegram is driven from her mind.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER X

Cherry Lane sprang up from her chair, out of the encircling arm of the old man who had been bending over her when Faith opened the door. Her face went suddenly white with anger and her eyes glowed like burning-hot golden coins.

"What do you want?" she demanded shrilly. "what do you mean—bumping in on me like this?"

Faith said nothing, but her eyes shifted scornfully from the smiling face of the white-haired man who stood by Cherry's desk. She could not help but admire the nonchalance with which he adjusted his horn-rimmed pince nez to his thin, high-bridged nose and stared at her, out of pale gray eyes that showed no trace of fear.

"What can I do for you?" he asked suavely.

"I am Cherry's sister," Faith said steadily. "And you can leave me alone with my sister for a moment, if you don't mind."

He bowed slightly, with old-fashioned grace, and then he turned to Faith and his cheek against hers. And then he was gone, leaving Cherry with his mouth. He had been kissing her. Oh, Cherry, why do you have to get all tangled up with every man you meet?

"Mind your own business!" Cherry snapped viciously. "I can take care of myself."

"I don't believe you can," Faith interrupted sharply. "You're playing with fire when you flirt with a married man."

"Married man?" Cherry laughed shortly. "Mr. Cluny's not married—his wife died two years ago."

"I wasn't speaking of Mr. Cluny," Faith cut her short. "I came up here to give you a message that was telephoned by the Western Union—from Albert ETTLESON."

The girl backed away from Faith, reached out a trembling hand to steady herself against her desk. "You let them read you—my telegram?" she gasped. Then, frightened by the fire in her topaz eyes, she whispered, almost pleadingly: "What did he say, Faith? Did you—did you tell Mother?"

"No," Faith answered, and then repeated the message which had been ringing in her ears ever since she had heard it over the phone.

Cherry listened with painful concentration, then relief flooded her face, bringing color into her pinched white cheeks. "Oh, that silly boy!" she tried to laugh unconcernedly. "It's just his poke—that 'love and kisses' business. He—he was telling me when I saw him last that he had a grand job lined up for me—with his company. That's what he meant, Faith, by saying he was writing full instructions." As she went on with her extemporaneous lie, she gained confidence, and her fingers, nonchalantly thrust into Faith's eyes.

"I have some shopping to do," Faith said, sick at heart, for she knew that Cherry was lying. "And I suppose you've got lots of work to do. But—but I think you'd better tell Mr. Cluny you are leaving at the end of the week, Cherry."

"I'll do no such thing!" The girl flared up again. "He's just a sweet old darling, old enough to be my father, or even my grandfather, and he doesn't mean any harm. He's just affectionate—that's all. But I'll tell him that my big sister objects to nice old men kissing me!" she ended with a light, sniggering laugh. "Good-bye, Faith. You—you won't tell Mother or Dad about the telegram or—about Mr. Cluny, will you?"

"I don't know," Faith said slowly, with her hand upon the knob. Before Cherry could plead any longer, she stepped into the reception room, closing the door behind her.

When Cherry entered the living room, at a quarter to six that night, the pitcher full of American Beauty roses filled her eyes with their glory and her quivering nostrils with waves of rich perfume.

"Oh, the darlings!" she cried ecstatically, hugging the great sheaf against her breast. "I wonder who sent them?" Raising the pitcher aloft, she bore it triumphantly into the dining room, where her mother sat tating at the window, her sick headache miraculously cured by the departure of Hattie Lane.

"Did you ever see such gorgeous roses, Mummy? Where the card? Who sent them?"

"George Pruitt," her mother began, her eyes fond and anxious. "The card's on the sideboard there—"

"Oh, here it is! Isn't he a darling? These roses reminded me of you—and just think, I didn't dream I'd make a hit with him! I'm going to call him up this minute. Isn't it a shame I have a date with Bob Hathaway tonight? I know! George is expecting to come over—after this!" and she buried her nose with ecstatic sighs into the great cluster of perfumed loveliness. Then, setting the pitcher upon the sideboard, she danced toward the hall to telephone.

"Wait a minute, honey," her mother called to her, but the ringing of telephone interrupted her explanation that the flowers were Faith's, not Cherry's.

Before Cherry could reach the instrument, Joy had bounded out of the bathroom, and had snatched the receiver from the hook.

"Hello-o-o-o!" she called in a high affected voice. Joy answered answering the telephone, although the call was never for her. "Yes, sir, this is the Lane residence. Mr. James G. Lane's residence."

"Give me that phone!" Cherry whispered fiercely, trying to tear the receiver from her sister's ear. "You make me so darned mad!"

"Who is it you want to speak to? Who? Oh! Wait just a minute, please. I'll see if she's here." Joy's voice drawled with the utmost politeness.

"Give me that phone, you little devil!" Cherry snapped.

"He don't want you smartly?" Joy let the receiver dance, and screamed at the top of her voice. "It's for you. It's a man—and he wants you! It's a man."

Faith came hurrying to the phone, brushing flour from her hands which she had taken from the biscuit tin. "Who is it, Faith?" Cherry whispered, pressing close to her sister's side when Faith had taken the telephone.

"Cousin, courtesy, then turning to Cherry, he said, as if nothing unusual had happened: 'As I was explaining—when we were interrupted—section three of this brief is to be omitted. I shall need five copies.'"

Cherry paid not the slightest attention to him, her hot, yellow eyes fixed upon her sister, who watched the tall, thin man leave the room with slow measured steps.

When the door into an office marked, "Mr. Cluny—Private," had closed upon him, Cherry sprang forward and seized Faith's wrist, twisting her arm cruelly.

"I suppose you want to get me fired?" she panted. "Butting in like that?"

"You were going to quit anyway, weren't you?" Faith asked with quiet, deadly sarcasm. "Don't you always quit when they get fresh with you?"

"He wasn't getting fresh!" Cherry blazed at her sister. "He's just a nice old man that doesn't mean a thing wrong! And then you come butting in, making it look like something awful—oh, I hate you! I hate you!"

"Oh, Mr. Pruitt! Very well, thank you: how are you? I'm awfully glad. I was going to write you a note thanking you for the roses. They are lovely." During the pause that followed, Faith glanced at Cherry.

The lovely little face was quite blank with astonishment. Then, as the meaning of Faith's words, sank in, angry color flooded her cheeks, and her eyes blazed hotly into her sister's. She was about to rush away to vent her humiliation upon her mother, when Faith's hand went out restrainingly.

"Oh, that's very kind of you, Mr. Pruitt! Cherry and Chester, too! That will be nice. Wait a moment and I'll ask her if she has any other engagements." Faith cupped a hand over the mouthpiece and whispered to Cherry, whose flight had been stayed by curiosity.

"It's George Pruitt, and he says he's having a little party tomorrow night in their new garage. He's got the upstairs fixed up into a studio, and he wants you and Chester and me to come."

"Oh, all right!" Cherry muttered ungraciously, but Faith knew that her anger was melting before the prospect of being an invited guest of the rich and influential Lincoln Pruitts.

Cherry followed her sister into the kitchen, her good humor rapidly returning. After all, he had been Faith's partner the night before. It would hardly have looked right for him to send the roses to her—Cherry. But why hadn't he had the gumption to address the box to both of them? To think of Faith getting a dozen American Beauty roses! Oh, well, it wouldn't be hard to get George Pruitt away from Faith.

"What are you going to wear, Faith, honey? Could you start my printed chiffon tonight while I'm out with Bob Hathaway, and rush it through tomorrow? I want to make a hit darling." Her voice was very sweet and coaxing.

"I'm sorry, Cherry, but I'm making myself a dress. Aunt Hattie got me the maize chiffon that I asked you to buy me, and we got it ready for the hemstitchers today. It will take all day tomorrow to finish it. You can wear your green organdy, can't you honey? Oh, I'm so sorry!"

But Cherry shook off her sister's comforting arms, her face distorted with anger. "Oh, you mean things! You did it just to get even! I won't take a step! That old green! I'll pay you back for this, Faith Lane! I'll make you sorry! You and your roses and your George Pruitt! How long do you think you can keep him, if I want him?"

PUT ART CLASSES IN CITY HIGH SCHOOLS

Art classes in the senior and junior high schools of Appleton will be held during the month of November, according to the principals and superintendent of schools Tuesday morning at the superintendent's office. Definite plans for establishing these classes were not made but the work will be under the direction of Miss Dorothy Krippner, supervisor of art in the public schools.

The question of school costs was discussed, and an article entitled "What Does a High School Education Cost" was reported by H. H. Heible, principal of Appleton high school. The principal's report was based on an article which appeared in the September issue of the American Insurance Union magazine and it concluded with the statement of a mother and father "anyway, no matter what it costs, it's worth it."

England is getting tired of sex novels, say publishing experts, and their place is being taken by detective, adventure and mystery stories.

Navy Dirigible is Safe, Comfortable for Airmen

Lakehurst, N. J.—(AP)—The United States navy dirigible Los Angeles is as stable to the civilian riding on it as it appears to the man gazing up from the ground.

Such was the outstanding impression gained by an Associated Press representative who during a recent flight of the big ship similar to this week's three day test cruise to Detroit, was asked by Lieut. Commander C. E. Rosendahl, flight commander of the ship to be the "eyes for everybody in the country," who would like to know what a trip in the dirigible is like.

Permission to make the trip was obtained from the navy department. Although the trip was of ordinary routine nature, conditions and circumstances being the same as those under which all persons would normally fly, the observer felt a certain detachment from the earth as if the big ship were another plane.

With 300 tugs alongside, the ship floated out of the hangar and across the field where officers and crew were waiting to climb aboard.

The command "up ship" was then megaphoned to the ground crew and the engines, hung from the hull in five cars just big enough to hold them and a mechanic or two, hummed with life. Without effort, and but little noticeable motion the ship then rose, nose pointed upwards, the whirling propellers driving it from the ground.

There was no sensation of rising as in an aeroplane or an express elevator. The earth simply dropped away until trees were dwarfed to the height of the grass and human figures completely disappeared. Houses became the miniatures of a child's toy village.

There was no vibration, no rolling as an altitude of 1,500, 2,000, 2,500 feet were reached. The roar of the engines were curiously stilled and as one looked down from the window of the luxurious cabin when flying altitude was reached he saw only a hazy landscape, the features of which had become geometrically precise.

APPOINTMENT OF HUGHES RECALLS OLD WORLD COURT

Body Is Not Court in True
Sense of Work But an Elgible List

Washington—The old "world court" the court established at The Hague in 1899, and called the Permanent Court of International Arbitration, has been lost sight of since the World War. It took the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes to this body by President Coolidge the other day to recall it. Then the correspondents had to hurry for their histories to make out what it was all about.

Hughes' appointment, for six years, was announced by the president, Hughes succeeding the late Charles Gray, who died last year.

There are two courts at The Hague, the "old line" to which Hughes was appointed, and the Permanent Court of International Justice, of which John Bassett Moore is a member. The fact of the two courts confused many writers who sent out erroneous dispatches about Hughes' new job.

SUPPORTED NEW COURT
Hughes, with Harding, worked ardently for the new world court, on which Moore is the American judge. He was one of its earliest supporters.

The 14th article of the covenant of the League of Nations contained a as are submitted to it, and give advisory opinions on questions submitted by the council or assembly of the league.

The Permanent Court of International Justice consists of 15 members. Candidates for membership are nominated by the various national groups in the Permanent Court of Arbitration of which Hughes is now a member.

The two courts interlock in this respect; a majority of the judges of the justice court are members of the arbitration court.

NOT A PERMANENT COURT
The court of which Hughes is a member is not a court in the ordinary sense, but a panel or eligible list from which, if a controversy is submitted, a tribunal of three to five persons is appointed for the purpose of trying the issues and rendering a decision.

The Permanent Court of Arbitration thus is neither permanent nor a court. It is a panel, now containing the names of about 130 men.

The Permanent Court of International Justice is the new world court, the Harding-Hughes court, which held its first sessions in 1922.

So a lot of correspondents had a lot of explaining to do.

FARMERS FORM COMMITTEES TO FIGHT THIEVES

Farmers in some towns of Outagamie-co are forming vigilance committees to apprehend chicken, apple and vegetable thieves. The committees, in necessary, will form regular schedules and will patrol every section of roads and side roads throughout the county. It has come to the point where steps must be taken to protect the fields and hen houses is to be stopped, the farmers declare.

License numbers of any cars parked on side roads will be taken and reported to police headquarters and owners of the cars will be questioned. The farmers are out of patience with this manner of loss and are determined to put a stop to the depredations committed, in many cases, by unthanking city residents.

"We spend our time and money in planting our fields and caring for our chickens and we depend upon the farm products and stock for a part of our wages," the farmer said. "We are being regularly robbed and have decided to take steps to stop this plundering."

Other characters in the opera will be: Martha Mathilla Ayers, Miss Donna Herriman; Patrick, Robert Matz; Don Juan, George Beckley; Capt. Colton, Carlton Staker; Lewis de Montero, Miss Beatrice Segal; Francisco de la Verga, William Meyer; Pedro, Robert Miller; and Emilio, Carl Nelson.

Work on the choruses was started several weeks ago, and rehearsals for the character parts will begin soon. It was announced.

Royalty Learns To Step Charleston On Board Ship

BY MILTON BRONNER

Paris — By the time they reach America, young Princess Ileana and her brother, Prince Nicholas, will be on Broadway.

Queen Marie is seeing to that, along with every other detail of their Americanization.

The radio in the royal Roumanian suite on the Leviathan rings in daily the latest jazz notes saxophone in the main dining room and ball room of the ship were stocked up afresh with new dance music for the Queen's party.

HEY, HEY! COME ON, ROYALTY!
The Queen's youngsters danced not merely for the joy of it. But literally so they can put their best foot forward in American society.

Their evenings on shipboard are set aside to training knees and toes for Charleston oscillations.

The Roumanian royalty should be by all odds the most studiously prepared visitors who ever visited America. Queen Marie realizes her beauty and charm and her quickness in emergency. But also she is too seasoned a campaigner not to be loaded in advance for as many as possible of her impromptu flashes.

The Queen is coming to America not demanding that America come to her. Her personal recognition of our official prohibition is one sign of that. She would drink much good tea and plenty of lime juice, but no liquors or wines, she told the ship's steward.

KNOWS ALL ABOUT AMERICA
She has kept up uncommonly with with American affairs, heretofore, and the ship's radio prevent a lapse on the water. She stocked up with the latest American books for ship reading selecting particularly those dealing with varied and typical segments of our life.

American dishes will be familiar to the royal guests by the time they reach our tables. The Queen asked the Leviathan chef before her sailing to let her sample as many American dishes as possible—especially terrapin, corn on the cob, clam chowder and knish cakes and maple syrup.

In Paris the Queen attended a concert by a chorus of amateur Roumanian singers, which also was preliminary—for there will be similar welcoming choruses to sing at her in American towns.

SHE LENDS PRESTIGE FOR PAYMENT

This American tour of Queen Marie, in many ways one of the most elaborate royal visits ever made, may prove to be the least expensive—that is, for the visitor. Merely a society woman, Mary Smith, would have to spend thousands for the trappings and accommodations. But Marie of Roumania, who is not "merely" anything, spends a sum of "much obliged" in lieu of many payments.

The courtesies here, among whom the Queen had a gorgeous week of shopping, were enchanted to have her trade. Most of them would be delighted if Her Majesty would accept a few trilling rows without charge. They will get their recompense, they believe American woman flock in to shops which outfitted the Queen.

"Much obliged," said the Queen, and the rather flat Roumanian exchequer was saved another strain.

BILLS TO BE "PRACTICALLY NOTHING"

The United States Lines realized the advertising value of a queenly passenger and were delighted to offer her the courtesy of their suites. The suave Yankee representatives of some of the largest American hotels visited the Queen. In Paris, saying: "If you don't stop at the palaces of your wealthy friends in America, our hotels will open all their comforts and special services to you. The bills will be minimum, practically nothing at all."

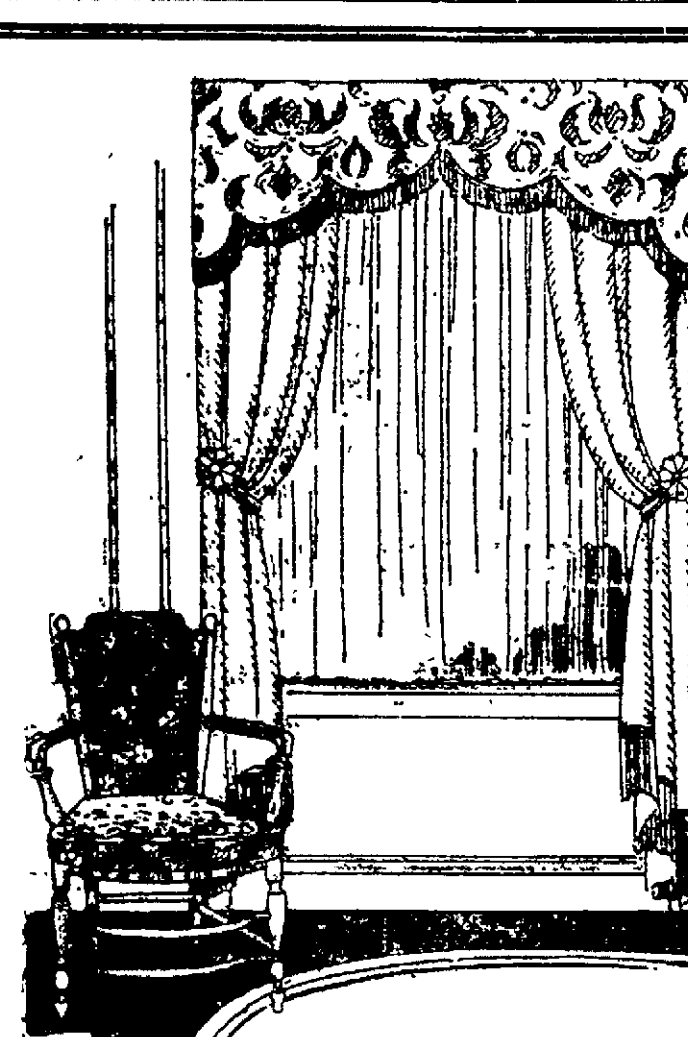

The railroads followed suit. Queen Marie is spending her energy and all the keenness of her personality to meet America more than half way. But the welcome which god her gracious "much obliged."

AUTOMOBILE HEATERS

This year we have a complete line of Automobile Heaters as we have added the Manifold Heaters to our line of exhaust heaters, making it possible for every one to get just exactly the heater he wants.

The Bovey Direct Exhaust Heater is the most popular of its kind, due to the fact that it has six very striking features:

1. Safety. Woodwork of car is fully protected.
2. Not only a Foot Warmer. It circulates and warms the air in the car.
3. Ease of control. Control located in the most accessible place—on the instrument board.
4. Cleanliness. Refuse may be instantly dumped thru spring trap in bottom of heater.
5. No Odor. No joints in radiator to leak gas.
6. No Upkeep. Outlasts the car. Can be transferred from old car to new.

A TYPE FOR ANY CAR—BE SURE IT'S A BOVEY.

Wouldn't Everybody Be Happy Though!
Folks, we can't help thinking as we ride along our way
And note how many aerials appear on roofs today,
If those were only cheerleaders, brought in the waves of fun,
This world that we are living in would be a merry one!

The Horrible Example.
I am old, and I'm a failure.
And I'm writing THE FUN SHOP
As a warning to its readers
Why I'm such an awful flop.

It's because my time was wasted,

I have heard a lot of fellows,
When they talk about the girls,
Say the one that they would marry

I will marry her in haste!

She won't use up MY toothpaste!

The nurse was holding the twins while the doctor was looking them over.
"I think they're too fat," said the doctor, "do you feed them lots of milk?"

"Yes, sor. Plinty iv it, too."
"Well," said the doctor, gravely, "hereafter you better give half milk and half water."
"Yes, sor," replied the Nurse.
"But, Doctor, to which half will I give the water?"

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSMIDDLE CLASS OF PEOPLE FORMING
DOWN IN MEXICOY. M. C. A. Secretary in Mexico Describes Country to Rotarians

Kaukauna—Richard Williamsen, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Mexico with headquarters at Mexico City was the principal speaker at the Rotary club meeting Wednesday noon in the Congress hotel. Mr. Williamsen brought greetings from the eighteen Rotary clubs in Mexico. He is a member of the Mexico City Rotary club. In the course of his talk he told what Rotary is doing in Mexico and he said he believed Rotary to be doing more in that country, in proportion to the number of clubs, than it is doing in America. He said one club sponsored a newspaper's home where the homeless orphans in the city can find a place to stay. Mr. Williamsen said the Rotary club was prominent in bringing many of the national heroes to the front in the past few years.

"Mexico is now going through a period of separation of church and state," Mr. Williamsen said. "And the Protestant and Catholic churches in that country must adjust themselves to the present conditions. The Labor Party is ruling and contrary to the general belief, the Mexican government is not a crumbling one, it is stronger now than ever."

HUGE PYRAMIDS

Mr. Williamsen said that Mexico would be a great tourist country within the next few years. As an illustration he said that some of the pyramids in Mexico were greater than those in Egypt.

He explained the different classes of people and he said a middle class is gradually being formed in Mexico. This class is rising to the front. Mexico has a gasoline tax and the money derived from it is being used to pave the roads. Mr. Williamsen related the idea that the present government is in league with landowners and he said cooperation with the labor unions shows results. Education is increasing and now Mexico finds herself in the peculiar position of not having enough teachers. Special summer schools have been arranged for teachers.

Paul Andrews gave a short talk at the meeting on business methods. The Rotary club will entertain city teachers and their friends at a party Wednesday evening, Oct. 20. Dr. E. J. Bollinske is chairman of the committee in charge of the party.

TWO TEAMS TIED IN BUSINESSMAN'S LOOP

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna Lumber Co. and the H. T. Runtz Co. bowling teams in the Businessmen's league went into a tie for first place as a result of league matches rolled on Hilgenberg's alleys Wednesday evening. Runtz won two out of three games from Kaukauna who were shot in the cellar and the Kaukauna Lumber Co. won two out of three games from Bayoregsons to keep pace with Runtz. Andrew Oll won two and lost one in their match with the Pendergasts and Bankers won the same way from the Maytag Washers. All of these matches were close. L. Van Eyke had the highest total for three games in the evening's matches when he busted the maples for 595 and Muldoon of the Bayoregsons was second high with 524. Carl Ploetz had high score for a single game when he rolled 231 in the first game of the evening while Muldoon was second, hitting the maples for a count of 222. As a result of the evening's matches Mulford and Pendergasts were forced into the cellar.

CHANGE DATE FOR
HOMECOMING GAME
WITH COLLEGE CITYHigh School Authorities Accede to Request from Lawrence College

Kaukauna—The Appleton-Kaukauna football game will be played on either Thursday, Nov. 11 or Friday, Nov. 12 according to work given out by the Kaukauna High school athletic department Wednesday. The change was made at the request of Lawrence College officials who said there are a great many people in Appleton who desire to see the Appleton-Kaukauna and the Lawrence college games to be played the following Saturday. The Appleton-Kaukauna game was originally scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 13. Plans are being made to accommodate about 1,500 people at the game and at least 800 are expected to come over from Appleton. It will be Kaukauna's biggest game and it is played with Kaukauna's natural rival. Last year Kaukauna won from Appleton 12 to 0.

Coach "Tiger" Smith's "Galloping Ghosts" look good as they get ready for West Green Bay Saturday. It is not known what kind of an attack Smith will use against Purple and White squad, but it will worry the big Bay men at the least. Kaukauna's speedy backfield is being bettered this year and there will be no chance for a defeat Saturday. Rumors from the Purple and White's camp are that the Bay men plan to run up a terribly large score against the Electric City team and are perhaps just a bit over confident about the game.

Paul Andrews gave a short talk at the meeting on business methods. The Rotary club will entertain city teachers and their friends at a party Wednesday evening, Oct. 20. Dr. E. J. Bollinske is chairman of the committee in charge of the party.

Special to Post-Crescent
Chilton—A trio who save their names as Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Elker and Charles Depper were arrested early Monday morning by sheriff Dieckrich for stealing an automobile, belonging to Frank J. Gerhardt of Stockbridge. Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt were attending the bazaar given by St. Mary's church of Stockbridge, and on leaving the church saw their car being driven away. Another car was produced, but the trio opened fire on their pursuers, who dropped the chase. YOUR SICK CHILD
IS CONSTIPATED!
LOOK AT TONGUE

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels.

Give "California Fig Syrup" if it cures Coughs or Feverish.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, listless, eating and acting naturally—look! Mother, see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach-sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poisons, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

SALVATION ARMY

OF ANNUAL DRIVE

Organization Seeks to Raise $4,000 in Appleton for Coming Year

Mayor Albert C. Rule has been appointed chairman of the Salvation Army campaign to be conducted here the last week in October, beginning Monday, Oct. 25, and Hugh G. Corbett has been named vice chairman. It was announced Thursday at Army headquarters. Confidence that Appleton would do its share was expressed by the chairman in accepting the appointments.

Attention was called to the fact that although the army subscribed only about half the amount needed to efficiently conduct the work last year, records show that the army carried out its service to the community in spite of the handicap under which the organization was placed.

The work has gone steadily forward, many of the less fortunate in the community have been given a lift over a rough spot in life, and meetings have been well attended. It was pointed out that as a result, many lives of sin have been saved, and it was reported.

Ninety-one families or 123 persons were given relief by the Army last year, while the same treatment was accorded 129 transients, according to the records. Money spent for relief work totaled $27.

The records show that 327 garments and 49 pairs of shoes were given to persons for relief. Other relief work included donation of 97 meals and 33 beds, and presentation of groceries to 41 families. Cash donations were paid for two families, rent was paid for four families, wood and coal was given eight, medical aid two, Christmas baskets 31 and Christmas toys 150 families.

Quota of $4,000 has been set by the advisory board for the campaign. The budget calling for this amount is based on actual necessities and is the amount needed to properly conduct the work in Appleton for the coming year, officials state.

Workers in different districts are now being arranged for by the committee. Everyone will be given an opportunity to subscribe as it is the intention of the committee to conduct the campaign along broad lines, it is reported.

Owen Hughes and Abbie Hughes,

CONSTITUTION MADE FOOTBALL OF LAW BY 18TH AMENDMENT

McGillan Warns Credit Men That War With Yellow Races Is Approaching

The Eighteenth amendment degrades the constitution of the United States because it makes the constitution the instrument and the law itself, instead of authorizing congress to pass legislation to prohibit the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquor, in the opinion of Judge James H. McGillan of Green Bay, who addressed about 100 members of the Okish Association of Credit Men Wednesday evening at Hotel Northern. Practically every city in the Fox River valley, as well as several others, was represented at the meeting.

Judge McGillan deplored the fact that the prohibition amendment has made the constitution the football of the courts by making it a law, instead of a means to pass a law. "I am not opposed to prohibition itself. If I were in congress, I should support wholesome measures for the restriction of the liquor traffic—but I would never vote for the Eighteenth amendment, as it is now framed," he declared.

He traced the "God-inspired" efforts of the founders of the constitution in drafting the instrument which made the United States possible, declaring that they had struggled for weeks regarding the insertion of one word, or even of a single comma.

"If you could bring some of the amendments of the constitution, as they now stand, to those early Americans for their approval and adoption, they would look at you in wonderment and think you were insane," he told his audience. He stressed the jealousy with which state rights were guarded, pointing out that the constitution was considered a power attorney, whereby limited rights were transferred.

Judge McGillan stressed the danger of rushing amendments through congress and the various states, and condemned the efforts recently made to permit congress to over-rule the decisions of the United States Supreme court. If these efforts were successful, it would be possible, he maintained, to deprive many citizens of their rights to vote by imposing property qualifications.

SEE ANOTHER WAR
America's need for preparedness was urged by Judge McGillan. He told his audience that $7,000,000 men and women had signed pledges in America never to aid their country, directly or indirectly, in the event of war. "The idea of pacifism is not new," he said. "Three thousand years before the birth of Christ Chinese philosophers were dreaming it, but still there is war."

"Some of you men here tonight will live to see another great war. It will be the conflict between the yellow hordes and the white race. It is the prayer of the Bedouin and the Jap and the Indian and the Chinaman, each to his god, that the infidel, as they call us, may be wiped from the face of the earth," Judge McGillan averred.

To demonstrate the animosity of the Japanese for Americans, Judge McGillan gave an account of a farewell between the officers of a United States squadron and the Japanese naval officers at Tokyo, shortly before the earthquake in Japan. It is a custom, he explained, for a visiting fleet to invite officers of the home port abroad on the evening before the fleet leaves harbor.

At the last moment, contrary to precedent, the Japanese officers fled abroad the flagship, and silently took their places. In violation of the rules of hospitality, they conversed between themselves in the Japanese language, and paid scant attention to their hosts.

CHALLENGE TO FIGHT
"When the skipper of the American flagship arose to his feet he held his glass high and gave the customary toast: 'Until we meet again,'" Judge McGillan said. "In response, as if by prearranged signal, every officer of the Japanese fleet leaped to his feet, mounted a chair and placed one foot on the table. With their glasses poised above their heads, they answered with one voice: 'And may it be on the high seas—the challenge to battle.'

"With blanched cheeks and fearful faces, these naval officers who do not fear death, repeated that story at a dinner in Chicago. They don't fear death, but they had just come through one war, and they realize to the fullest extent the horror of it. And now they say: 'God sent an earthquake.' If it had not been for that earthquake, God alone knows what the result would have been. Those Japanese officers would not have dared to voice those sentiments unless they had been given instructions by someone high in the empire," Judge McGillan said.

WOULD CHANGE NAME
Holding that the name of the association is now inadequate, in view of its increased scope, members proposed to change the name from Okish Association of Credit Men to Central Wisconsin Association of Credit Men. The proposal will be submitted to vote at a later date.

Charles D. Breon, secretary of the association reported on the credit situation in Florida. Dealers doing business in Florida must now expect to allow long time credits, while those who are carrying accounts must be prepared to extend the time of payment until the state recovers to some extent from the effects of the hurricane, he urged.

Prosecution of fraudulent bankruptcies also was discussed at the meeting. It is common practice for some concerns to issue false statements into bankruptcy, and thus to their creditors. The only way in which to assure a fair measure of success in prosecuting these cases is to offer proof that the financial statements were intentionally fraudulent and that they had been sent through the mails, it was stated.

A representative of the National association was present at the meeting and spoke on the collection of ledger information. This information

Home-made Supply of Fine Cough Syrup

Better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and it is splendid for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable gualacol, which has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
